P R E F A C E

In preparing the accompanying work it has been the aim of the author to supply what he has felt in his own experience to be a great desideratum,—a practical first book in Latin, suited to the capacity of beginners, and yet full enough for a book of reference throughout a course of preparation for college. Free use has been made of the works of the best German, English, and American authors, and no pains have been spared to produce a book adapted to the wants of our Southern youth. The almost insuperable difficulties in the way of publication render it impossible to present the work in the most desirable style of binding and typography; but the author is assured that such defects as result from the terrible struggle through which our nation is passing, will be readily overlooked.

It will be observed that the paradigms have been syllabicated with reference to the English method of pronunciation, but the teacher can without difficulty use either the Roman or Continental method.

Madvig's system of gender in the third declension has been adopted as the most philosophical and the shortest, all the rules and exceptions occupying but two pages; and though teachers will find it inconvenient to have old associations broken up, the author is convinced that a fair trial will satisfy all that this system is the best.

The exercises have been taken, for the most part from classical authors, and are so arranged as to constitute a continual review of what precedes. Those teachers who prefer the synthetic method of instruction to the exclusion of the analytic, can omit the exercises, as the work is complete without them.

Many facts of the language, which the pupil will readily find out for himself, have been omitted; also a number which properly pertain to the subject of Latin prose composition, on which subject the author proposes to prepare a work for the use of schools.

The work, imperfect as the author is conscious that it is, is commended to the teachers of the Confederate States as an auxiliary, however feeble, in establishing Southern literary and intellectual independence.

OAKS, N. C., May 10th, 1863.

LATIN GRAMMAR.

§ 1. Latin Grammar is the science of the Latin language. It treats of the words of the language, and the laws by which they are combined into sentences.

It is divided into Etymology and Syntax.

ETYMOLOGY.

§ 2. Etymology treats, 1. Of the letters which make up words, and their pronunciation; 2. Of the changes which words undergo; 3. Of their derivation.

LETTERS.

§ 3. A letter is a mark used to represent a sound of the human voice.

In the Latin alphabet there are twenty-five letters. They are A,a; B,b; C,c; D,d; E,e; F,f; G,g; H,h; I,i; J,j; K,k; L,l; M,m; N,n; O,o; P,p; Q,q; R,r; S,s; T,t; U,u; V,v; X,x; Y,y; Z,z.

Remark. I and J were originally the same letter; so also U and V. K, Y, and Z are used only in words derived from the Greek. H is a breathing.

§ 4. Letters are divided into vowels and consonants. The vowels are. a, e, i, o, u, y.

Of the consonants,

{	four are liquids, l, m, n, r ;
{	three are c sounds, c, g, q, — ;
{	four are p sounds, p, b, f, v ;
{	two are t sounds, t, d ;
{	two are double consonants, x, z.

DIPHTHONGS.

§ 5. A diphthong is the union of two vowels in one sound. The diphthongs are æ, œ, (often written together, æ, œ) ai, au, ei, eu, oi.

PRONUNCIATION.

§ 6. Continental method.

Short a, as in hat .	Long o, as in no .
Long a, as in father .	v, as o in do .
Short e, as in mê .	æ and œ, as a in made .
Long e, as a in made .	au, as ou in our .
Short i, as in sit .	e e, as in feud .
Long i, as in machine .	ei, as i in ire .
Short o, as in not .

§ 7. English method.

The letters are pronounced as in English :

Exc. 1. Final a has the broad sound, as in ah. Other final vowels have the long sound.

Exc. 2. Es final is pronounced like the English ease.

Exc. 3. Os final in plural cases is pronounced like ose in dass.

Exc. 4. C has the sound of s before e, i, and y, and the diphthongs æ, œ, and eu. Otherwise it has the sound of k.

Exc. 5. ç has the sound of k.

Exc. 6. G has the sound of j before e, i, y, œ, and œ.

SYLLABLES.

§ 8. There are no silent vowels in Latin ; but every word has as many syllables as it has vowels or diphthongs; as ma-re.

2. A word $\left\{ \begin{array}{l} \text{of one syllable is called a } \textit{mono-} \\ \textit{syllable}; \text{ of two syllables, a } \textit{dis-} \\ \textit{syllable}; \text{ of more than two, a } \textit{poly-} \\ \textit{syllable}. \end{array} \right.$

The last syllable of a word is called the ultimate; the next to the last, the penult; the third from the last, the antepenult.

QUANTITY, ACCENT.

§ 9. Rule 1. All diphthongs are long.

Rule 2. A vowel before another vowel is short.

Rule 3. A vowel before two consonants or a double consonant is long by position.

Rule 4. Dissyllables are accented on the penult; as de-us.

Rule 5. Polysyllables are accented

(a) on the penult if the penult is long; as le-b-nis.

(b) on the antepenult if the penult is short; as dom-i-nus.

EXPLANATION OF MARKS.

§ 10. The marks of punctuation are the comma (,), used to mark the shortest pauses; the semicolon (;), used to mark a pause twice as long as the comma; the colon (:), used to mark a pause three times as long as the comma; the period (.), used to mark the longest pause; the interrogation point (?), which shows that a question is asked; and the exclamation point (!), used to mark expressions of surprise, grief, &c. Penultimate vowels, when long, will be italicized.

DIVISION OF WORDS.

§ 11. I. Words are divided according to their formation into

1. Primitive; i. e. not derived from other words; as, man, king.

2. Derivative; i. e. derived from other words; as, manly, kingdom.

3. Simple; i. e. not made up of other words; as, man.

4. Compound; i. e. made up of other words: as, mankind.

II. Words are divided according to their meaning into eight classes called parts of speech: viz. the Noun, Adjective, Pronoun, Verb, Adverb, Preposition, Conjunction, Interjection.

NOUNS.

§ 12. 1. A noun is the name of a thing;* as, man, city.

2. A common noun is the name of any one of a class of things; as, man, city.

3. A proper noun is the name of an individual thing; as, Cæsar, Rome.

4. An abstract noun is the name of a quality, action, being, or mode of action or being; as, goodness, running.

5. A collective noun is one which in the singular denotes more than one; as, multitude.

Gender, Number, Case, Person.

§ 13. 1. To nouns belong gender, number, case, and person.

2. Natural gender denotes the distinction of sex.

* A thing is whatever one can think of (res,—reor).

3. Grammatical gender is that which is determined, not by sex, but by declension and termination.

Rule 1. Names of male beings, and of most rivers, winds, months, mountains, and nations, are masculine.

Rule 2. Names of female beings, cities, countries, trees, plants, islands, ships, and gems, are feminine.

Rule 3. Nouns which are neither masculine nor feminine, are neuter.

Rule 4. Some nouns are either masculine or feminine. These, if they are names of living beings, are said to be of the common gender; if of things without life, of the doubtful gender.

§ 14. Number is the variation of form which shows whether one thing is meant, or more than one.

The singular number is the form which denotes one thing; as, stell-a, a star: the plural is the form which denotes more than one; as, stell-æ, stars.

§ 15. Case is the variation of form which shows the relation of the noun to other words.

Latin nouns have six cases: viz.

(a) The nominative, which answers the question who? or what? and gives the simple name of the thing spoken of;

(b) The genitive, which marks those relations expressed in English by of, or the possessive case; as, umbra, the shade, (of what?) sylvæ, of the forest;

(c) The dative, which denotes that to or for which, or with reference to which, any thing is, or is done;

(d) The accusative, which is the object of a transitive verb, or of certain prepositions;

(e) The vocative, which is used when a person is addressed;

(f) The ablative, which marks those relations expressed in English by from, with, in, by.

§ 16. Person means the character which a noun or pronoun has, according as it represents the speaker, the person spoken to, or the thing spoken of.

A noun or pronoun representing the speaker is of the first person; as, I, Darius, make a decree. Here "I," and "Darius" are of the 1st person.

A noun or pronoun representing the person spoken to is of the second person; as, Do you hear me, Robert? Here "you" and "Robert" are of the 2nd person.

Remark.—Things without life are sometimes addressed and are then said to be personified, or treated as persons.

A noun or pronoun representing the thing spoken of is of the third person; as, John runs, water freezes. Here "John" and "water" are of the 3rd person.

INFLECTION.

§ 17 The changes which words undergo to express their different relations is called inflection.

The inflection of nouns is called declension; that of verbs, conjugation.

There are five declensions in Latin, distinguished by the endings of the genitive singular.

THE FIRST DECLENSION.

§ 18. Latin nouns which have æ in the genitive singular are of the first declension. The terminations are,

	Sing.	Plur.
Nom. and Voc.	a	æ
Gen.	æ	arum
Dat.	æ	is
Acc.	am	as
Abl.	a	is

By adding these terminations to the stem mens—, which means a table, we have the following

PARADIGM.

Singular.	Plural.
Nom. mens-a , a table.	mens-æ , tables.
Gen. mens-æ of a table.	mens-arum , of tables.
Dat. mens-æ , to or for a table.	mens-is , to or for tables.
Acc. mens-am , a table.	mens-as , tables.
Voc. mens-a , O table!	mens-æ , O tables!
Abl. mens-a , with, from. in, by, a table.	mens-is , with, from, in, by, tables.

Remark.—The Latin has no article; therefore mensa may be rendered a table, or the table, according to the connection.

Rule. Latin nouns of this declension are feminine.

Exc. 1. Names and appellations of men, as Galba, nauta.

Exc. 2. Names of rivers.

Exc. 3. Hadria, the Adriatic sea, is masc.; and dama, a fallow deer, and talpa, a mole, are common.

Note.—Dea, a goddess; equa, a mare; Alia, a daughter; and mula, a she-mule, have sometimes abus in the dative and ablative plural.

For Greek nouns of 1st Dec., see appendix I.

EXERCISE. 1.

§ 19. Like mensa decline the following nouns, and commit to memory their meanings.

Aquila,	eagle.	Epistola,	letter.
Aqua,	water.	Nauta, (§ 18, Exc. 1.)	sailor.
Columba,	dove.	Insula,	island.

Corona,	crown	Luna,	moon.
Ara,	altar,	Medicina,	medicine.
Agricola, (§ 18, Exc. 1.)	farmer.	Poeta, (§ 18, Exc. 1.)	poet.
Ala,	wing.	Regina,	queen.
Ancilla,	maid-servant.	Fuga,	flight.
Injuria,	injury.	Pluma,	feather.
Belga, (§ 18, Exc. 1.)	a Belgian,	Filia,	daughter.

Translate into English.

Columbæ. Coronarum. Aris. Reginam. Filiabus.
 Injuriis. Belgarum. Fuga. Alis. Ancillæ. Ancillis.
 Injuriarum. Columbis.

Translate into Latin.

Of water. For the farmer. Of the maid servants. To the farmers. By wings. Of feathers. To sailors. The letter. By the letters. In the island. Of islands. Of the moon.

EXERCISE. 2.

§ 20. Rule. The genitive is used to limit the meaning of nouns, and also of some adjectives, verbs, and adverbs.

Thus pluma means a feather, any feather; but when the genitive columbæ is added, the application of pluma is limited, or confined to the dove; columbæ pluma means a dove's feather, and no other sort.

Rule of position. The emphatic word, whether limiting or limited, stands first. Thus, Alia reginæ, the daughter (not the son) of the queen; reginæ filia, the queen's (not the king's) daughter.

Translate into English.

Columbæ pluma. Columbarum pluma. Columbæ alis.
 Filia agricolæ. Agricola filia. Agricolarum filiabus. Reginarum coronæ. Coronæ reginarum. Nautæ epistola. Injuria poetæ. Insula Belgarum. Fuga ancillæ. Ancillarum fuga.

Translate into Latin.

[Emphatic words are in italics.]

In the island of the Belgians. For the altars of the Belgians. A sailor's letter. The Queen's letter. By the flight of the farmer. The flight of the farmer's doves. The injury of the queen's maid-servants. O daughters of the queen's maid-servants! The water of the island.

EXERCISE. 3.

Subject and Predicate. Partial conjugation of verbs.

§ 21. I. A sentence is a thought expressed in words ; as, snow melts.

1. Every sentence consists of

(a) A Predicate ; i. e. that which is declared ;

(b) A subject ; i. e. that of which the declaration is made.

In the sentence "snow melts," the predicate is "melts," because "melts" is what is declared or asserted about "snow;" the subject is "snow," because it is the thing about which the declaration is made—what melts? snow.

2. The Predicate is a verb alone, (as melts in the above example,) or the verb to be with a noun, adjective, or participle ; as, snow is cold.

3. The subject is a noun, or some word or phrase used as a noun, and may be known by asking the question who ? or what ? with the predicate ; as, John runs. (Who runs? John.) To play is pleasant. (What is pleasant? To play.)

4. The subject and predicate may stand alone, or each may have other words limiting its meaning ; as, boys run ; some boys run fast.

II. A verb is a word which declares, or affirms something.

1. Verbs have

(a) Moods, or different forms which express different kinds of affirmation.

(b) Tenses, or different forms to show the time when the thing declared takes place.

(c) Voices, or different forms which show whether the subject acts, (as, John strikes,) or is acted upon, (as, John is struck.)

(d) Persons and Numbers, or different forms which correspond to the person and number of the subject.

2. These various forms are distinguished from one another by certain endings; and the adding of these endings to the stem is called conjugation.

MOODS.

III. 1. The Infinitive mood expresses the action of the verb simply, without reference to any subject; as, am-are, to love.

2. The Indicative mood declares a fact, or asks a question; as, amat, he loves; amat-ne? Does he love?

TENSES.

IV 1. The Present tense expresses incomplete action in present time; as, amo, I love, I am loving.

2. The Imperfect tense expresses incomplete action in past time; as, amabam, I was loving.

3. The Future tense expresses incomplete action in future time; as, amabo, I will love, I will be loving.

CONJUGATIONS.

V 1. There are four Conjugations, distinguished from one another by the termination of the Infinitive Present Active. The Infinitive Present Active of the first Conjugation ends in -are.

Rule. To find the stem of a verb, strike off the Infinitive ending.

ACTIVE TERMINATIONS.

INFINITIVE, a-re.

INDICATIVE.

		Present.	Imperfect.	Future.
			Singular.
1st	Person	o	a-bam	a-bo
2nd	"	as	a-bas	a-bis
3rd	"	at	a-bat	a-bit
			Plural.
1st	"	a-mus	a-ba-mus	ab-i-mus
2nd	"	a-tis	a-ba-tis	ab-i-tis
3rd	"	ant	a-bant	a-bunt

By adding these terminations to the stem am of amare, to love, we have the following :

PARTIAL PARADIGM.

INFINITIVE PRESENT, a-ma-re, to love.

INDICATIVE MOOD.

Present.

Sing.	a-mo,* a-mas, a-mat,	I love, or am loving, thou lovest, or art loving, he loves, or is loving,
Plur.	a-ma-mus, a-ma-tis, a-mant,	we love, or are loving, ye or you love, or are loving, they love, or are loving.

* Accented syllables are italicized above, whether long or short.

Imperfect.

Sing.	a-ma-bam,	I was loving, a-ma-bas,	thou wast loving.
	a-ma-bat,	he was loving,
Plur.	am-a-ba-mus,	we were loving, am-a-ba-tis,	ye or you were loving,
	a-ma-bant,	they were loving.

Future.

Sing.	a-ma-bo,	I shall love, a-ma-bis,	thou wilt love,
	a-ma-bit,	he will love,
Plur.	a-mab-i-mus,	we shall love, a-mab-i-tis,	ye or you will love,
	a-ma-bunt,	they will love.

Form in the same manner these tenses of

vol-are,	to fly,	laud-are,	to praise,
salt-are,	to dance,	voc-are,	to call,
cant-are,	to sing,	occup-are,	to seize,
delect-are,	to delight,	arm-are,	to arm,
par-are,	to prepare,	edific-are,	to build.

EXERCISE. 4.

1. A Transitive verb is one which requires an object to complete the sense; as, poeta reginam laudat, the poet praises the queen.

2. An Intransitive verb is one which does not require an object to complete the sense; as, aquila volat, the eagle flies.

3. Rule of Syntax. The subject of a finite verb is in the Nominative.

4. Rule of Syntax. The direct object of a transitive verb is in the accusative. (Reginam above is the direct object of laudat; i. e. the thing to which the praising is directed.)

5. Rule of Syntax. The verb agrees with its subject in number and person.

6. Rule of Position. The subject usually stands at the beginning of the sentence.

7. Rule of Position. The direct object precedes the verb.

8. To analyze a sentence is to separate it into its parts and show their relation to each other.

9. To analyze a word is to tell its properties, and its relation to other words.

Poeta reginam laudat, the poet praises the queen.

ANALYSIS OF THE SENTENCE.

The predicate of this sentence is laudat, because it is that which is declared or asserted about the poet.

The subject is poeta, because it is that of which the praising is declared. (Who praises? The poet.)

The predicate is limited by reginam, the direct object, (i. e. the thing to which the praising is directed.)

ANALYSIS OF THE WORDS.

Poeta is a common noun, masculine, 1st (decl.),—here decline it,—found in the nominative singular, subject of laudat. Rule, The subject of a finite verb is in the nominative. (Here let the teacher ask, “Why called a noun? Why a common noun? Why masc.? Why of the 1st decl.? Why accented on the penult? &c.”)

Reginam is a common noun, feminine, 1st. (here decline it,) found in the accusative singular, object of laudat. Rule, The object of a transitive verb is in the accusative.

Laudat is a verb, transitive, 1st (conj.), found in the Indicative-Present active, 3rd person singular, (here inflect the tense,) agreeing with poeta as its subject. Rule, The verb agrees with its subject in number and person. (Here let the teacher ask, "Why called a verb? Why transitive? Why of 1st conj.? Why indicative? &c.)

Translate into English and analyze.

§ 22. Agricola poetam amat. Aquila volabat. Ancillæ medicinam parabunt. Belgæ aras ædificabant. Nautæ insulam occupabunt. Corona reginam delectabit. Agricola filiam vocabat.

Translate into Latin.

The maid-servants are preparing the table. The queen was calling the farmer's daughter. The poets will praise the queen. The sailor's daughter will sing. The farmers are building an altar. The moon delights the poet. We love the queen. You were calling the maid-servants.

EXERCISE 5.

Vocabulary.

insidiæ, arum, { ambush,

{ used only in plural, { snares.

in the plural, forces.)

1. The subject, as well as the predicate may have words limiting its meaning.

2. The pronouns I, thou, we, you, are not usually expressed in Latin, as the endings of the verb show the person and number.

3. The words my, thy, his, their, &c., are not expressed in Latin, when the relation is obvious. Thus, The queen loves her daughter, Regina filiam amat.

Translate into English and analyze.

In analysis of sentences give the predicate with its limiters, then the subject with its limiters.

Ancilla reginæ agricolæ filiam vocabit. Terræ umbra lunam obscurat. Fuga nautarum incolas insulæ delectat. Copiæ Belgarum insulam occupabant. Nautæ puellas vocant. Plumæ columbarum reginæ ancillas delectabunt.

Translate into English.

The flight of the queen delights the Belgians. Farmers love (their) daughters. The sailor loves the queen's maid-servant. The farmer's daughter will prepare the queen's table. A dove's feather delights the sailor's daughter. A crown delights the queen's daughter. An eagle's feather delights the queen's maid-servant; a crown delights the queen's daughter.

SECOND DECLENSION OF NOUNS.

§ 24. Latin nouns whose genitive ending is i are of the second declension.

Those which have um in the nominative, are neuter; the rest, masculine.

ENDINGS.

Masculine.			Neuter.
	Sing.	Plur.		Sing.	Plur.
Nom.	us	i	Nom.	um	a
Gen.	i	orum	Gen.	i	orum
Dat.	o	is	Dat.	o	is
Acc.	um	os	Acc.	um	a
Voc.	e	i	Voc.	um	a
Abl.	o	is	Abl.	o	is

By adding these endings to the stem domin—, master, and the stem regn—, kingdom we obtain the following:

PARADIGM.

	Singular.	Plural.
Nom.	* dom i nus , a master.	dom i ni , masters.
Gen.	dom i ni , of a master.	dom i no-rum , of masters.
Dat.	dom i no , to or for a master.	dom i nis , to or for masters.
Acc.	dom i num , a master.	dom i nos , masters.
Voc.	dom i ne , O master!	dom i ni , O masters!
Abl.	dom i no , with, &c., a master.	dom i nis , with, &c., masters.

*In paradigms, accented syllables will be italicized, whether long or short.

Singular.

Plural.

Nom.	reg num, a kingdom.	reg na, kingdoms.
Gen.	reg ni, of a kingdom.	reg no rum, of kingdoms.
Dat.	reg no, to or for a kingdom.	reg nis, to or for kingdoms.
Acc.	reg num, a kingdom.	reg na, kingdoms.
Voc.	reg num, O kingdom!	reg na, O kingdoms!
Abl.	reg no, with, &c., a kingdom.	reg nis, with, &c., kingdoms.

Rem. 1. Names of trees, plants, &c., are fem. by the general rule. Alvus, belly; carbasus, linen; colus, distaff; humus, ground; and vannus, fan, are fem.

Virus, juice, and pelagus, sea, are neuter. Vulgus, common people, is neuter—rarely masculine.

Rem. 2. In proper names in ius, with filius, son, and genius, guardian spirit, the vocative ending e is absorbed; as, Tullius, voc. Tulli. Meus has mi in the voc. Deus, god, has Deus in the voc. and in the plural N. and V Dii; G. Deorum; Dat. and Abl. *Dii*s, Deis, Dis; Acc. Deos.

Rem. 3. The ending orum of the Gen. pl. is sometimes contracted into um.

Rem. 4. Neuter nouns of all declensions have the nominative, accusative, and vocative alike, and these cases in the plural end always in a.

The poet's children love the queen. Crassus praises the fields of the Helvetians. The Germans love war. The wolves will tear in pieces the farmer's children. Wild boars love the shade of the forest. The master will call back the boys. Tully's horse loves (his) master. The farmer's slaves are bridling the horses.

EXERCISE 8.

§ 28.

The Dative Case.

1. The Dative expresses that to or for which, or with reference to, which any thing is, or is done.

2. Rule of Syntax. The remote object of a verb is in the Dative ; as, servus domino medicinam parat, the servant prepares medicine for his master.

Rem. The remote object of a verb is the thing towards which its action tends without necessarily reaching it. Thus in the above example the action expressed by parat is exerted directly upon the medicine,—medicinam, and the point to which it tends is the master,—domino,—though it does not necessarily reach that point, since it is not implied that the master receives or uses the medicine prepared for him.

3 Rule of Position. The remote object precedes the direct.

Vocabulary.

liber,i, book.
via,æ, way.
taurus,i, bull.
agnus,i, lamb.
hædus,i, kid.

monstr-are, to show.
mact-are, to sacrifice.

Galli Germanis insidias parant. Crassus copiis Gallorum insidias parat. Regina agricolæ equum dat. Galli nautis insulam monstrant. Reginæ ancilla Gallis Germanorum insidias monstrat.

Translate into Latin.

The queen's father-in-law will give (to) the poet a field. The queen of the Helvetians is preparing snares for Tully's forces. The inhabitants of the island were sacrificing a lamb to the gods. The master is preparing a book for the boys. The slaves are preparing a way for their master. The master gives (to) his slave a kid. The slave gives (to) the farmer's son a dove's egg.

EXERCISE 9.

§29. The Ablative Case.

1. Rule of Syntax. The Ablative expresses the cause, manner, means, and instrument; as,

Cæcus avaritia, Blinded by avarice.

Hoc modo fecit, He did it in this manner.

Aquila alis volat, The eagle flies with his wings.

Captivum gladio necat, He kills the captive with a sword.

2. Rule of Syntax. The Ablative, (usually with the preposition in,) expresses the place where.

3. Rule of Position. Expressions of cause, manner, means, instrument, time, and place, precede the predicate. Expressions of manner, means, and instrument, are placed after the direct object, while those of cause, time, and place usually precede it.

Vocabulary.

in, in; (preposition with abl.)
terra,æ, the earth, ground.
tuba,æ, trumpet.
signum,i, signal, sign.
venenum,i, poison.
gladius,i, sword.

Marcus,i, Mark.
ar-are, to plow.
vex-are, to annoy, trouble.
vulner-are, to wound.
cultus,tri, knife.
ambul-are, to walk.

Translate into English and analyze.

Marci filius Gallis signum tuba dat. (The predicate is here limited by Gallis, the remote object; signum, the direct object; and tuba, the ablative of the instrument.) Agricola terram equis arat. Captivus Tullium cultro vulnerabit. Poeta in silvis ambulat. Marcus Helvetios injuriis vexabat. Nauta reginæ generum gladio necabit.* Germani captivos gladiis necant.* Aquilæ alis volant. Regina filio regnum dat. Ancilla reginæ Crassum veneno necat.

* Necare means to murder, usually with poison, hunger, &c.; but sometimes also with a weapon.

bit. Umbram silvæ amamus. Dominus servos tuba convocat. Reginae socer filium Tullii injuriis vexat.

Translate into Latin.

The farmer's sons will plow the fields with horses. The girls are dancing in the forest. The poet was walking in the garden. The slaves of Tully are preparing snares for the ambassadors of the Helvetians in the forest. The inhabitants of the islands will kill the ambassadors with their swords. The Germans were annoying the Gauls with injuries. Doves fly with their wings. The farmer will give the sailor's daughter a lamb. Wolves are howling in the forest.

THIRD DECLENSION OF NOUNS.

§30. Nouns whose genitive ending is is are of the third declension.

CASE ENDINGS.

Singular.		Plural.
Masc. and fem.	Neut.	Masc. and fem.	Neut.
N. s, (generally).	e. (sometimes.)	es.	a, (ia).
G. is.	is.	um, (ium).	um, (ium).
D. i.	i.	ibus.	ibus.
Ac. em, (sometimes im).	Like nom.	es.	a, (ia).
V. Like nom.	Like nom.	es.	a, (ia).
Ab. e, (sometimes i).	(e, sometimes i).	ibus.	ibus.

Nouns of the third declension are divided into six classes, viz. :—

I. Nouns which add s to the stem in the nominative without any vowel change. (Feminines). As, urb-s, urbs.

II. Nouns which insert a connecting vowel (e or i) before adding s. (Feminines). As, rup-e-s, rupes.

III. Nouns which change the stem-vowel i into e before adding s. As, stem milit, milet-s, miles. (Masculines.)

IV Nouns which add e to the stem. (Neuters). As, mar-e, mare.

V Nouns which present the unchanged stem in the nominative without adding s. (Masculines, except nouns in al, ar, ur, which are neuter). As, consul.

VI. Nouns which change the stem in the nominative without adding s. As, stem virgin,—Nom. virgo.

N B. A c-sound with s makes x. As, leg-s, lex; arc-s, arx. D or t before s is dropped. As, font-s, fons.

§ 31. CLASS I. The nominative is formed by adding s to the stem without changing the stem-vowel.

PARADIGMS.

Singular.
	City.	Law.	Praise.	Art.	Citadel.
N. & V.	Urb-s.	Lex. (leg-s.)	Laus. (laud-s)	Ar. (art-s.)	Arx. (arc-s.)
G.	ur-bis.	le-gis.	lau-dis.	ar-tis.	ar-ci.
D.	ur-bi.	le-gi.	lau-di.	ar-ti.	ar-ci.
Ac.	ur-bem.	le-gem.	lau-dem.	ar-ti-a.	ar-cem.
Abl.	ur-be.	le-ge.	lau-de.	ar-te.	ar-ce
Plural.
N. & V.	ur-bes.	le-ges.	lau-des.	ar-tes.	ar-ces.
G.	ur-bi-um.	le-gum.	lau-dum.	ar-ti-um.	ar-ci-um.
D.	ur-bi-bus.	le-gi-bus.	lau-di-bus.	ar-ti-bus.	ar-ci-bus.
Ac.	ur-bes.	le-ges.	lau-des.	ar-tes.	ar-ces.
Abl.	ur-bi-bus.	le-gi-bus.	lau-di-bus.	ar-ti-bus.	ar-ci-bus.

Rule. Stems ending in two consonants, with dos, lis, fraus, vis, faux, (nom. obs.), nix, compes, strix, have ium in the genitive plural.

Rule. Stems of more than one syllable in nt and rt (adding s), with names of nations in as, have ium and sometimes um.

Rem. 1. Other nouns in as with forax and palus, sometimes have ium. Quiris and Samnis have ium.

Rem. 2. Pars, part, and lens, lentile, have sometimes im in the accusative; and the same, with sors, lot, and tridens, trident, have e or i in the abl. Partim is usually an adverb.

Rule of Gender. Nouns which form the nominative by adding s to the stem without vowel change, are feminine; except Masculines.

1. Dens, tooth, and its compounds; fons, fountain; pons, bridge; and mons, mountain; cliens, client; rudens, rope, (rarely fem.); and compounds of as.

2. Grex, flock; Greek nouns in ax and ix, with calix, cup; fornix, arch; perdix, partridge; tradux, vine-branch.

3. Paries, wall; pes, foot; lapis, stone.

Masculine or Feminine.

Many nouns denoting living beings, with scrobs, ditch; stirps, trunk of a tree; calx, heel; calx, lime.

EXERCISE 10.

§ 32. 1. The ablative is used with prepositions which imply rest in a place; as, in urbe habitat, he lives in the city; or motion from a place; as, ex urbe equitat, he rides out of the city.

2. The accusative (the whither case) is used with prepositions implying motion to a place; as, in urbem venit, he comes into the city; as, ad regem venit, he comes to the king.

3. Caution. To, when it implies motion must be translated by ad with the acc.

4. Rule of Position. A preposition with its case precedes the predicate.

Vocabulary.

in, (preposition with acc. or abl.) in or into.
ad, (prep. with acc.) to, towards.
ex, (prep. with abl.) out of.
equit-are, to ride on horseback.

dens, dent-is, tooth.
rudens, rudent-is, rope.
pes, ped-is, foot.
calx, calc-is, heel.

hiem-are, to winter, spend the winter.
 serv-are, to preserve, protect.
 viol-are, to dishonor, break, (a law, &c.)
 habit-are, to dwell, live.
 mand-are, to intrust.

Rem. 3. The following have em, and rarely im:

Bipennis, a battle-axe.	Messis, a harvest.	Præsepis, a stall.
Clavis, a key.	Navis, a ship.	Sementis, a sowing.
		Strigilis, a flesh-brush.

Rem. 4. Nouns which have im in the accusative, with names of months in er and is, have i in the ablative; as, vis, vim, vi; Aprilis, Aprili.

But Bætis, cannabis, and sinapis have e or i.

Rem. 5. Nouns which have em or im in the accusative have e or i in the ablative; as, turris, turre or turri.

But restis has e only.

Rem. 6. The following, though they have only em in the accusative, have e or i in the ablative, but most of them have oftener e than i:

Amnis,	Civis,	Corbis,	Ignis,	Postis,
Anguis,	Classis,	Finis,	Mugilis,	Sordes,
Avis,	Collis,	Fustis,	Orbis,	Unguis,
Bilis,	Convallis,	Canalis,	Ovis,	Vectis.

Rem. 7 Names of towns, when denoting the place where, have i in the ablative; as, Carthagini, at Carthage.

Rem. 8. Nouns of this class (adding s with connecting vowel e or i;) have ium in the genitive plural.

Exc. Canis, dog; juvenis, young man; foris, door; mugilis, mullet; proles, offspring; strues, pile; vates, prophet, have um; also generally apis, bee; strigilis, flesh-brush; volucris, bird; sometimes, mensis and cædes.

Rule of Gender. Nouns of this class are feminine.

Exc. 1. Palumbes, vates, vepres, are masculine or feminine.

Exc. 2. The following in is are masculine or feminine:

Amnis, river .	Canis, dog .	Funis, rope .
Anguis, snake .	Clunis, haunch .	Scrobis, ditch .
Callis, path .	Corbis, basket .	Tigris, tiger .

Ensis, sword .	Orbis, circle .	Vectis, lever .
Fascis, bundle .	Panis, bread .	Vermis, worm .

EXERCISE 11.

§ 34. 1. Conjunctions connect words which are in the same construction. As, Cæsar et Brutus, Cæsar and Brutus; gladiis pilisque, with swords and darts.

N. B. Et connects things which are separate and distinct, and of equal importance; que (always written at the end of a word,) connects one thing closely to another as an appendage, the two making one complete idea. Thus the "swords and darts" above constitute together offensive armor.

2. If the subject consists of more than one thing, the verb must be plural. Hence

Rule of Syntax. A collective noun may have a plural verb; as, plebs clamant, the people shout.

Vocabulary.

ignis, is, fire.
port-are, to carry.
formid-are, to dread.
vigil-are, to watch.
festin-are, to hasten.
import-are, to import.

Lupi oves et hædos laniant. Crassus in colle turrem ædificat. Galli naves et copias Germanorum formidant. Crassus partem plebis cultris lapidibusque armabit. Columbæ per silvam volant. Cecrops Athenas ædificabit. Canes et lupi oves laniant. Rex et regina in horto ambulant. Cives in urbe vigilant.

Translate into Latin.

Crassus will lay waste the fields of the Belgians with fire and sword (ferro ignique). The nobility dread the fleet of Tullius. The nobility will preserve the liberty of the citizens with the sword. The maid-servant is preparing a mullet for her master. The queen will walk in the garden with her daughters. The farmer's sons will carry sheep and kids to the city. The nobility will arm their slaves with stones and knives. The farmer's son will show (to) the ambassadors of the Belgians the way through the forest. Tullius will take possession of the hill. Medicine will relieve fevers.

THIRD DECLENSION OF NOUNS.

§ 35. CLASS III. The stem-vowel is changed (i into e) before adding s to form the nominative.

Singular.

	Miles (mīlet-s), soldier.	Princeps (prinsep-s), chief.
N. and V	mī les ,	prin ceps ,
G.	mīl i tis ,	prin ci pis ,
D.	mīl i ti ,	prin ci pi ,
Acc.	mīl i tem ,	prin ci pem ,
Abl.	mīl i te ,	prin ci pe ,

Plural.

N., A. and V	mīl i tes ,	prin ci pes ,
G.	mīl i tum ,	prin ci pum ,
D. and Abl.	mīl it i-bus .	prin cip i bus .

Rule of Gender Nouns which change the stem-vowel, (i into e), before adding s to form the nominative are masculine.

Exc. 1. Merges, fem. (mergitis), a sheaf.

Exc. 2. Masc. or fem. Adeps, adipis, grease; forceps, forcipis, pincers..

EXERCISE 12.

§ 36. 1. A noun limiting another, and denoting the same person or thing, is said to be in apposition with it.

2. Rule of Syntax. Nouns in apposition agree in case ; as, Jugurtha rex, Jugurtha the king.

Rem. A noun in apposition with two or more nouns is put in the plural ; as, Jugurtha et Bocchus, reges, Jugurtha and Bocchus, kings.

N. B. Many nouns on account of their meaning vary from these rules. See § 13, Rules.

TENSES OF THE VERB

EXPRESSING COMPLETED ACTION.

§ 47. I. The tenses which express incomplete action are the present, imperfect and future ; those which express completed action are the present-perfect (perfect), past-perfect (pluperfect), and future-perfect. These three tenses are always formed on the same stem, called the perfect-stem.

II. The perfect-stem in the first conjugation is formed by adding -av- to the present-stem; as, present-stem, am-; perfect-stem, am-av-.

III. The present-perfect tense expresses completed action in present time; as, pres. cœno, I sup; pres. perf. cœnavi, I have supped. The same form of the verb is used to express an action indefinitely as past, without reference to its continuance or completion. This is called the aoist-perfect, or indefinite-perfect; as, cœnavi, I supped, (at some indefinite past time.)

IV The past-perfect tense expresses completed action in past time; as, imp. cœnabam, I was supping; past-perf. cœnav-eram, I had supped.

V. The future-perfect tense expresses action completed in future time; as, fut. cœnabo, I shall sup; future-perf. cœnav-ero, I shall have supped. °

	am a ver i tis,	ye will have loved,
	a mav e rint,	they will have loved.

Rem. 1. A few verbs of the first conjugation form the perfect stem by adding u to the present stem ; as, nec-at, he kills ; nec-u-it, he has killed ;—or by lengthening the present stem ; as, juv-at, (u short) he helps ; juv-it, (u long) he has helped.

Rem. 2. The supine-stem is generally formed in the 1st conjugation by adding -at to the present-stem ; as, amo, am-at-um. The ending of the supine is -um.

NOTE. The pupil should hereafter give the principal parts, in analyzing verbs. Where the perfect and supine stems vary from the usual formation, they will be given in the vocabularies.

EXERCISE 20.

Vocabulary.

Dare [perf. stem ded-, sup. stem dat-] to give.

Nec-are, [necav- or necu-, necat-, rarely nect-,] to kill.

Sec-are, [secu-, sect-,] to cut.

Lav-are, [lav-, lavat-, laut-, lot-,] to wash. báthe.

The other verbs used, thus far, form the perfect supine stems regularly.

Cicero disputed concerning the origin of the soul. The consul had routed the forces of the enemy by land and sea. The brother of Cicero the orator, called together the common people. Balbus, Tully's slave, brought burdens into the city. The queen had walked in the farmer's garden. The king's son had given (to) his sister a necklace. The boys loved the master's children. The ambassadors of the Æduans had asked aid. The nobility dreaded a rebellion among the common people. Cæsar hastened into Gaul. The Gauls prepared snares for Crassus.

FOURTH DECLENSION OF NOUNS.

§ 48. Nouns whose genitive ending is us (long,) are of the fourth declension. The nominative endings are us and u.

Rem. 1. These nouns were originally of the third declension, the termination us of the genitive being contracted from uis.

Rem. 2. Some nouns of this declension have likewise the inflection of the second declension, especially in the genitive singular; as, senatus, senati.

Rem. 3. A contracted form of the dative in u sometimes occurs.

Rem. 4. The following nouns have ubus in the dative and ablative plural:—

Acus, a needle.	Artus, a joint.	Partus, a birth.	Specus, a den.
Arcus, a bow.	Lacus, a lake.	Pecu, a flock.	Tribus, a tribe.

Genu, a knee; portus, a harbor; tonitrus, thunder; and veru, a spit, have ibus or ubus.

Rem. 5. Domus, a house, is thus declined:

Ac.	do mum,	do mus, or do mos.
V.	do mus,	do mus.
Ab	do mo,	dom i bus.

Domus in the genitive singular generally means of a house; domi at home. The ablative domu is found. Domorum and domos are the most common forms of the gen. and acc. plural.

Rule of Gender. Nouns of the fourth declension in us are masculine; those in u, neuter.

Exc. 1. The following are feminine:

Acus, needle. Idus, Ides. Manus, hand. Tribus, tribe.
Domus, house, Ficus, fig. Porticus, gallery.

Exc. 8. Penus, storehouse, is masculine or feminine. Secus, sex, is neuter. Specus, den. is masculine, rarely feminine or neuter.

A hunter wounded the consul's son-in-law in the King's forest.

FIFTH DECLENSIO OF NOUNS.

§ 49. Nouns which have ei in the genitive from es of the nominative are of the fifth declension. They are all feminine except dies, day, (masc. or fem. in the singular, and always masc. in the plural,) and meridies, midday, (masc.).

Rem. 1. Dies, day, is feminine only when it denotes a fixed day.

Rem. 2. The genitive and dative singular sometimes end in e or i, instead of ei.

Rem. 3. There are only about eighty nouns of this declension, and of these only two, res and dies, are complete in the plural. Acies, effigies, ciuites, facies, glacies, progenies, series, species, spes, want the genitive, dative, and ablative plural, and the rest want the plural altogether.

Rem. 4. All nouns of this declension end in ies, except four—fides, faith; res, a thing; spes, hope; and plebes, the common people;—and all nouns in ies are of this declension, except abies, aries, paries, quies, and requies, which are of the third declension.

VERBS OF THE SECOND CONJUGATION.

§ 52.- 1. All verbs that have ere (penult long) in the 1st finite-Present are of the second conjugation.

2. The perfect-stem in verbs of this conjugation is usually formed by adding u, and the supine-stem by adding i to the present-stem; as, mon-eo, I advise; monu-i, I have advised, supine mon-it-um. (Perfect and supine stem which are otherwise formed will be given in the vocabularies.)

The chief of the Eduans feared the cruelty of the Helvetians. The attack of the cavalry thoroughly frightened the enemy's archers and slingers. The skirmishers lay hid in the forest. The works of Cicero the orator delight the poet. The farmers had not sheared their sheep. The horses were champing their bits. The King and Queen remained in the temple. The Helvetians had moved their camp from the hill to the river. The Gauls furnished corn to Cæsar's army.

ADJECTIVES.

§ 54. 1. An adjective is a word which qualifies or limits the meaning of a noun.

2. Adjectives are declined like nouns; they are either of the first and second declension, or of the third only.

CLASS I. ADJECTIVES OF THE FIRST AND SECOND DECLENSION.

§ 55. Adjectives of this class have their masculine and neuter endings of the second declension, their feminine endings of the first.

bon i,	bon æ,	bon a,
bon is,	bon is,	bon is.

Rem. 1. Participles and pronouns in us are declined like bonus.

Rem. 2. Adjectives whose stems end in er generally drop the endings us in the nominative, and e in the vocative; and most of them drop e of the stem in inflection; as, pulcher, pulchra, pulchrum. beautiful; pulchr-i, pulchr-æ, pulchr-i, &c.

Rem. 3. The following retain e of the stem :

Asper; rough; exter, foreign; gibber, crook-backed; lacer, torn; liber, free; miser, wretched; prosper, prosperous; and compounds of fer and ger; as, corniger, horned.

Rem. 4. Alter, the other of two, has altera, alterum; and dexter, right, has sometimes dextera, dexterum.

Satur, full, has satura, saturum.

§ 56. Six adjectives in us, and three in er, have their genitive singular in ius, and their dative in i, in all the genders :

Alius , another .	Totus , whole .	Alter , -tera , -terum , the other .
Nullus , no one .	Ullus , any .	Uter , -tra , -trum , which of the two .
Solus , alone .	Unus , one .	Neuter , -tra , -trum , neither .

To these may be added the other compounds of uter,—namely, uterque, each of two; utercumque, uterlibet, and utervis, which of the two you please; gen. utriusque. etc.—also, alteruter, one of two; gen. alterutrius, and sometimes alterius utrius; dat. alterutri. So alteruterque, and unusquisque.

Nullus, solus, totus, ullus, and unus are thus declined :

Singular.

	Masc.	Fem.	Neut.
N.	u nus ,	u na ,	u num ,
G.	u ni us ,	u ni us ,	u ni us ,
D	u ni ,	u ni ,	u ni ,
Ac.	u num ,	u num ,	u num ,
V.	u ne ,	u na ,	u num ,
Ab.	u no .	u na .	u no .

The plural is regular, like that of bonus.

Rem. 1. Alius has aliud in the nominative and accusative singular neuter, and in the genitive alius contracted for aliūs.

Rem. 2. Some of these adjectives occasionally form their genitive and dative regularly.

The enemy's skirmishers swam across a broad river. The faithful servants defended their master with knives and stones. The attack of the enemy did not frighten the general. The great commander slew many captives. The hunter saw many wolves in the forest. Wicked men do not fear the countenance of an unjust judge. The kind master, according to custom, was advising the boys.

EXERCISE 25.

§ 58. I. Rule of Position: When a noun is limited by an adjective and a genitive, the adjective is generally put first, as, fidus Tullii servus, Tully's faithful slave.

2. Rule of Position An adjective limiting the object of a preposition is often put before the preposition; as, magno in prelio, in a great battle.

3. Rule of Syntax. With words expressing a part, the genitive is used to denote the whole; as, unus militum, one of the soldiers; multi equitum, many of the horsemen.

Remark. This is usually called the partitive genitive. The partitive word, if an adjective, agrees in gender with the word denoting the whole. Unus militum is equivalent to unus miles militum.

V. pru dens,	pru dens,
Ab. pru dent e or i,	pru dent e or i; &c.

2. Present participles are declined like prudens. When used as articiples they have e rather than i in the ablative singular; but when used as adjectives they have i rather than e. Comparatives also have often e than i.

3. Adjectives of one termination have either e or i in the ablative.

Exc. 1. The following adjectives of one termination have only e in the ablative:

Bicorpor, bipes, cælebs, compos, deses, discolor, hospes, impos, nubēs, juvenis, locuples, pauper, princeps, puber or pubes, senex, spes, superstes, tricorpor, tricaspis, and tripes.

Exc. 2. The following adjectives of one termination have only i in the ablative:

Anceps, concors, discors, hebes, immemor, iners, ingens, inops, memior, par, præceps, recens, repens, vigil, and most adjectives in plex, especially those in plex.

Rem. 1. Inerte, recente, and præcipe sometimes occur.

Rem. 2. Præsens, when used of things, makes the ablative in i; when used of persons, it has e.

4. The neuter of the nominative and accusative plural ends in i, and the genitive plural of all genders in ium; but vetus, old, and uber, fertile, have a, and um.

Exc. 1. Those adjective that have only e in the ablative singular, have um in the genitive plural.

Exc. 2. Compounds of facio and capio, and of such nouns as make m in their genitive plural, with celer, compar, cicur, dives, memor, memor, præpes, supplex, and vigil, make their genitive plural in m.

Exc. 3. Dis, locuples, sons, and insons have either um or ium; and other adjectives have sometimes um instead of ium in the poets and other prose writers.

NUMERAL ADJECTIVES.

§ 63. 1. Adjectives expressing number are called numerals, and are divided into three classes, viz :

(a.) Cardinals, which answer the question, "How many?" as, unus, one ; duo, two :

(b.) Ordinals, which express order or rank ; as, primus, first ; secundus, second :

(c.) Distributives, which answer the question, “How many to each?”—“How many apiece?” as, singuli, one to each, one at a time, one apiece; bini, two apiece.

2. To these may be added numeral adverbs, which answer the question “How many times?” as, semel, once; bis, twice.

Rem. 1. The first three cardinal numbers are declined. From four to a hundred they are indeclinable; those denoting hundreds are declined like the plural of bonus.

Rem. 2. For the declension of unus. See § 56. Tres is declined like the plural of brevis.

§ 64. Duo is thus declined. —

	Plural.
	M.	F.	N.
N.	du o,	du æ,	du e,
G.	du o rum,	du a rum,	du o rum,
D.	du o bus,	du a bus,	du o bus,
Ac.	du os, or du o,	du as,	du o,
V.	du o,	du æ,	du o.
Ab.	du o bus.	du a bus.	du o bus.

Rem. 1. Duorum, duarum, are often contracted into duum, especially in compounds, as, duum vir, and when joined with milliŕm. — Ambo, both, is declined like duo.

The cardinal numbers, except unus and mille, are used in the plural only.

Rem. 2. The plural of unus is used with nouns which have no singular, or whose singular has a different sense from the plural; as, ŕne nuptie, the marriage; ŕne cenæ, the camp. It is used also with nouns denoting several things considered as one whole; ŕne exstimenta, one suit of clothes. So, also, when it takes the signification of “alone” or “the same” as, ŕni Ubi, the Ubi-alone; ŕnis moribus ŕne, — with the same manners.

1. (a.) Thirteen, sixteen, seventeen, eighteen, and nineteen, are often expressed by two numbers, the greater of which usually precedes, united by et; thus, decem et tres, decem et novem, or, admitting of, decem novem. Cicero has no good authority. See infra 4.

(b.) From twenty to a hundred, the smaller number with et is put first, or the greater without et as, unus et viginti, or viginti unus. Above one hundred, the greater precedes, with or without et as, centum et unus, or centum ŕnus; decem et sexaginta ŕna, or trecenta et sexaginta ŕa. E is never twice used, but the poets sometimes take etque, or que, instead of et.

4. For eighteen, twenty-eight, &c., duodeviginti, duodeviginti ŕa, &c. (two-from-twenty, two-from-thirty, &c.) are more commonly used; and for nineteen, twenty-nine, &c., undeviginti and undeviginti ŕa, &c. (one-from- twenty, one-from-thirty, &c.) Neither un (unus) nor duo are declined in these combinations.

5. (a.) Thousands are generally expressed by prefixing the smaller cardinal numbers to millia; as, decem millia, ten thousand; ducenta millia, two hundred thousand. As there is in Latin no unit above mille, (a thousand,) the higher units of modern numeration are expressed by prefixing the humeral adverbs to the combinations centena millia; as, decies centena millia, a million; centies centena millia, ten millions. In such combinations centena millia is sometimes omitted; as, decies, scil. centena millia.

(b.) The poets sometimes make use of numeral adverbs in expressing smaller numbers; as, bis sex for duodecim; bis centum for ducenti, etc.

6. Mille is used either as a substantive or as an adjective.

(a.) When taken substantively, it is indeclinable in the singular number, and, in the plural, has millia, millium, millibus, etc.; as, mille hominum, a thousand men; duo millia hominum, two thousand men, etc. When mille is a substantive, the things numbered are put in the genitive, as in the preceding examples, unless a declined numeral comes between; as, habuit tria millia trecentos milites.

(b.) As an adjective, mille is plural only, and indeclinable; as, mille homines, a thousand men; cum bis mille hominibus, with two thousand men.

§ 65. 1. In the ordinals, instead of primus, prior is used, if only two are spoken of. Alter is often used for secundus.

2. (a.) From thirteenth to nineteenth, the smaller number is usually put first without et; as, tertius decimus, but sometimes the greater with or without et; as, decimus et tertius, or decimus tertius.

(b.) Twenty-first, thirty-first, etc., are often expressed by unus et vicesimus, unus et tricesimus, etc., one and twentieth, etc.; and twenty-second, etc., by duo, or alter et vicesimus, etc., in which duo is not changed. In the other compound numbers, the larger precedes without et, or the smaller with et; as, vicesimus quartus, or quartus et vicesimus.

(c.) For eighteenth, etc., to fifty-eight, and for nineteenth, etc., to fifty-ninth, the subtractive forms, duodevicesimus, etc., and undevicesimus, etc., are often used.

2. In the distributives, eighteen, thirty-eight, forty-eight, and nineteen and twenty-nine are often expressed by the subtractives, duodevicensi, etc., undericeni, etc.

4. (a.) Distributives are sometimes used by the poets for cardinal numbers: as, duo specula, two ducts. Virg. So likewise in prose, with nouns that want the singular; as, duo nuptiae, two weddings.

(b.) The singular of some distributives is used in the sense of multiplicatives: as, biens, two-fold. Se tentos, se octos, se quatuor.

5. In the numeral adverbs, for the intermediate numbers 21, 22, etc., the larger number also may be put first, either with or without et; and for twenty-eight times and thirty-nine times, duodevicesis and tridequadrages are found.

EXERCISE 28.

§ 60. 1. Rule of Syntax. The point of time at which any thing occurs is expressed by the ablative. As, tertia hora, at the third hour. (Ablative of Time.)

2. Rule of Syntax. Duration of time, and extent of space, are expressed by the accusative, sometimes by the ablative. As, tres horas mansit, he remained three hours; fossa duos pedes lata, a ditch two feet wide.

3. Rule of Position. Designations of time usually precede the predicate.

Vocabulary.

Fossa, a; ditch.
Hora, a; hour.
Mensis, is, (§ 33. Exe. 3; month.
Dies, ei, day.
Annus, i, year.
Una ex parte, on one side.
Biens, biens, twice.

The great rains had kept our soldiers in the camp many months. In one summer Cæsar laid waste many States of Gaul with fire and sword. For many years (acc.) the Roman's routed all their enemies by sea and land. Cæsar moved his camp ten thousand paces from the city. The soldiers of the tenth legion had carried heavy burdens for many hours (acc.) Our skirmishers sustained the attack of the Germans three hours. Lake Lemannus held in the Helvetians on one side. The farmer had a ditch three feet wide in his field. The farmer will have in his fields five ditches, each three feet (ternas) wide. The master gave (to) the boys four books apiece. A ditch twelve feet wide and six feet deep had hindered the attack of the enemy many days.

2. A noun or adjective may limit the predicate as well as the subject ; thus we may say Cicero orator, Cicero the orator : and Cicero orator fuit, Cicero was an orator : ager ferax, a fertile field, and ager ferax est, the field is fertile.

PREDICATE NOMINATIVE.

3. Rule of Syntax. A noun in the predicate denoting the same thing as the subject, agrees with it in case, and is called the predicate nominative ; as, Cicero orator fuit, Cicero was an orator.

Rem. 1. If the subject consists of more than one thing, the predicate nominative is plural.

Rem. 2. Adjectives in the predicate agree with the subject. See § 57, 2.

The aorist-perfect is translated, I was, thou wast, he was, we were, &c.

The farmer's oxen are large. Many bulls are horned. All generals are not wise. The inhabitants of the villages dread the huge lion. Cicero was a wise consul and a great man. The wounds of the brave soldiers were severe. Many of the swift horsemen were unhurt. Davus, Cæsar's slave, has been blind many years. Our soldiers in a triple line renew the battle. All human things are uncertain. The shade of the dense forest will frighten the king's swift messenger.

COMPARISON OF ADJECTIVES.

§ 68. 1. The change which adjectives undergo to express different degrees of quality is called comparison.

2. Grammarians generally give three degrees of comparison, the positive, comparative and superlative.

3. The simple form of the adjective is usually called the positive; as, altus. high.

4. The comparative represents the quality as existing in one of two things or sets of things, in a higher degree than in the other; as, mons arbore altior est, a mountain is higher than a tree.

5. The superlative represents the quality as existing in one of several things, or sets of things, in a higher degree than in any of the rest; as, trium montium altissimus, the highest of the three mountains.

* Rem. 1. When two qualities of the same thing are compared, the comparative is used; as, Aristides justior quam sapientior fuit, Aristides was more just than wise.

Rem. 2. The comparative may often be translated by too or rather with the positive, especially when one of the things compared is omitted; as, rex clementior est, the king is too merciful.

Rem. 3. The superlative often expresses a high degree of a quality; as, mons altissimus, a very high mountain.

FORMATION OF COMPARATIVE AND SUPERLATIVE.

§ 69. 1. The comparative is formed by adding ior, and the superlative by adding issimus to the stem of the adjective; as, alt-us, high, alt-ior, higher, alt-issimus, highest.

2. Superlatives are of the first and second declension.

Comparatives are of the third declension, and are thus declined :

Singular.		Plural.
M. & F.	N.	M. & F.	N.
N. durior,	duriorius,	duriores,	duriora,
G. durioris,	durioris,	duriorum,	duriorum,
D. duriori,	duriori,	durioribus,	durioribus,
Ac. durior em,	duriorius,	duriores,	duriora,
V. durior,	duriorius,	duriores,	duriora,
Ab. durior e or i.	durior e or i.	durioribus.	durioribus.

EXERCISE 30.

§ 70. 1. That with which anything is compared is connected by the conjunction quam, than, in the same case, or in the nominative, subject of est, fuit, &c., understood; as, fortiorem vidi neminem quam Marium, I have seen no braver man than Marius; or fortiorem vidi neminem quam Marius (est), I have seen no braver man than Marius is.

2. Quam is sometimes omitted; then

Rule of Syntax. The ablative is used with the comparative degree, when quam is omitted, to express that with which something is compared; as, mons est arbore altior, a mountain is higher than a tree.

Vocabulary.

Sanctus, a, um, sacred; (of a man, pure.)

Durus, a, um, hard.

The general is braver than the soldiers. The consul's son will be more prudent than his father. No nation was braver than the Helvetians. The king's messengers are swifter than horses. Lions are fiercer than dogs. Nothing is more sacred than the oath of a good man. A good man's promise is more sacred than a wicked man's oath. The Belgians were a braver race than the Gauls. No general was more prudent than Cæsar. The king's garden is more fertile than the farmer's field. Iron is harder than silver. Silver is not heavier than gold. The general is not more prudent than the centurion.

EXERCISE 31.

§ 71. The partitive genitive is used with comparatives and superlatives; as, fortior duorum fratrum, the braver of the two brothers; fortissimus militum, the bravest of the soldiers.

Vocabulary.

The bravest of the enemy did not sustain the attack of our horsemen. The Rhine, a very broad river, keeps in the Helvetians on one side. The wicked king had slain the noblest of the hostages. The consul will lay waste the most fertile states of Gaul. On the third day the general moved his camp into the most fertile part of the province. The most wicked of men fear the wrath of God. The greatness of the danger frightened the bravest of our soldiers. The general is wiser than the king's ambassadors. One of the enemy wounded Lucius, a very brave man, with a stone. Davus is the most faithful of all the slaves. Rome is the noblest city of Italy.

IRREGULAR COMPARISON.

§ 72. 1. Adjectives whose stems end in er form the superlative by adding rimus; as, pulcher, beautiful, pulchrior, pulcherrimus.

2. Six adjectives in lis form their superlative by adding limus to the stem:

Facilis,	facilior,	facillimus,	easy.
Difficilis,	difficilior,	difficillimus,	difficult.
Gracilis,	gracilior,	gracillimus,	slender.
Humilis,	humilior,	humillimus,	low.
Similis,	similior,	simillimus,	like.
Dissimilis,	dissimilior,	dissimillimus,	unlike.

Imbecillus or imbecillis, weak, has two forms, imbecillissimus and imbecillimus.

3. Compound adjectives ending in dicus, ficus and volus, form the comp. and superl. by adding entior and entissimus to the stem; as, benevolus, benevolent, benevolentior, benevolentissimus.

4. These five have regular comparatives, but irregular superlatives:

Dexter,	dexterior,	dextimus,	right.
Extera, (fem.)	exterior,	extremus, or extimus,	outward.
Postera, (fem.)	posterior,	postremus or postumus,	hind.
Inferus,	inferior,	inimus, or imus,	below.
Superus,	superior,	supremus, or summus,	above.

REMARK 1. The nominative singular of postera does not occur in the masculine, and that of extera wants good authority.

5. The following are very irregular in comparison:

Bonus,	melior,	optimus,	good,	better,	best.
Malus,	pejor,	pessimus,	bad.	worse.	worst.
Magnus,	major,	maximus,	great,	greater,	greatest
Parvus,	minor.	minimus,	little,	less,	least.
Multus,	—	plurimus.	much,	more,	most.
Multa,	—	plurima,
Multum,	plus,	plurimum,
Nequam,	nequior,	nequissimus,	worthless, etc.
Frugi,	frugalior,	frugalissimus	frugal, etc.

Plus, more, is thus declined:—

Singular.		Plural.
N.		M & F.	N.
N.	plus,	N. plu res,	plu ra, rarely plu ri a,
G.	plu ris,	G. plu ri um,	plu ri um,
D.	—,	D. plu ri bus,	plu ri bus,
Ac.	plus,	Ac. plu res,	plu ra,
V.	—	V. —,	—
Ab.	plu re, (obs.)	Ab. plu ri bus,	plu ri bus.

So, but in the plural number only, complures, a great many.

The citizens gave (to) the consul's soldiers more (of) wounds than (of) gold. The general called together the greatest of the chiefs. Cæsar was a greater general than Crassus.

DEFECTIVE COMPARISON.

§ 74. 1. Seven adjectives want the positive :

Citerior, citimus, nearer.
Deterior, deterrimus, worse.
Interior, intimus, inner.
Orior, ocissimus, swifter.

Prior, primus, former.
Prorior, proximus, nearer.
Uterior, ultimus, further.

2. Eight want the terminational comparative :

Consultus, consultissimus, skillful .	Par, parissimus, (very rare), equal
Inlutus, inclutissimus, renowned .	Persuasus, persuasissimus (neuter) persuaded .
Invictus, invictissimus, invincible .
Invitus, invitissimus, unwilling .
Meritus, meritissimus, (very rare), deserving .	Sacer, sacerrimus, sacred .

3. The following want the terminational superlative :

Adolescens, adolescentior, young .	Proclivis, proclivior, sloping .
Agrestis, agrestior, rustic .	Pronus, pronior, bending down .
Alacer, alacrior, active .	Protervus, protervior, violent .
Ater, atrior, black .	Propinquus, propinquier, near .
Cæcus, cæcior, blind .	Salutaris, salutarior, salutary .
Deses, desidior, inactive .	Satis, sufficient : satius, preferable .
Diurnus, diurnior, lasting .	Satur, saturior, full .
Infinitus, infinitior, unlimited .	Senex, senior, old .
Ingens, ingentior, great .	Silvestris, silvestrior, woody .
Jejunus, jejunior, fasting .	Sinister, sinisterior, left .
Juvenis, junior, young .	Supinus, supinior, lying on the back .
Licens, licentior, unrestrained .
Longinquus, longinquier, distant .	Surdus, surdior, deaf .
Opimus, opimior, rich .	Teres, teretior, round .

Rem. 1. The superlative of juvenis and adolescens is applied by minimus natu, youngest; and that of senex by maximus natu, oldest. The comparatives of minor natu and major natu sometimes also occur.

4. Many adjectives form the comparative and superlative by prefixing magis, more, and maxime, most: as, pius, magis pius, maxime pius; pious, more pious, most pious. This is especially the case with adjectives in bundus, inus, ius, orvus, ivus, and us with a vowel before it.

THIRD AND FOURTH CONJUGATION OF VERBS.

The great king will punish many thieves and robbers. The prudent general had fortified his camp with a rampart and ditch. One of the consuls has led the Romans to victory.

PRONOUNS.

§77. 1. A pronoun is a word used instead of a noun.

2. There are eighteen simple pronouns :

Ego, I.	Hic, this, the latter.	Suus, his, hers, its, etc.
Tu, thou.	Is, that or he.	Cujus? whose?
Sui, of himself, etc.	Quis? who?	Noster, our.
Ille, that, the former.	Qui, who.	Vester, your.
Ipse, himself.	Meus, my.	Nostras, of our country.
Iste, that, that of yours	Tuus, thy.	Cujas? of what country?

3. Of these ego, tu, and sui, are called substantive, because they are used as nouns; and personal, because ego, always denotes the speaker; tu, the person spoken to; and sui, the person spoken of.

SUBSTANTIVE PERSONAL PRONOUNS.

§ 78. The substantive personal pronouns are thus declined :

Singular

N.	e-go, I.	tu, thou.
G.	me-i, of me.	tu-i, of thee.	{ su-i, of himself, her- self, itself.
D.	mi-hi, to me.	tib-i, to thee.	sib-i, to himself, &c
Ac.	me, me.	te, ti	se, himself, &c.
V	_____	ti, thou.	_____
Ab.	me, with me.	te, with thee.	se, with himself, &c

Plural.

N.	nos, we.	vos, ye or you.
G.	{ nos-trum } of us.	ves-trum or { ves-tri, } of you.	su-i, of themselves.
D.	no-bis, to us.	vo-bis, to you.	sib-i, to themselves.
Ac.	nos, us.	vos, you.	se, themselves.
V	_____	vos, O ye or you.	_____
Ab.	no-bis, with us.	vo-bis, with you.	se, with themselves.

Rem. 1. The nominatives ego, tu, nos, vos, are expressed with the verb only for the sake of emphasis or contrast; as, ego equito, tu ambulas : I am riding, you are walking; nos vocabamus, respondistis : we were calling, ye answered.

Rem. 2. The syllable met is annexed to all the forms of the personal pronouns, except ti, nostrum and vestrum, for emphasis; se is frequently used for se, being more emphatic; also tu', and tu-met for tu.

Rem. 3. The pronoun sui is also called reflexive, because it refers to the subject of the sentence: as, pater se laudat, the boy praises himself.

EXERCISE 34.

§ 79. 1. Rule of Syntax. If the subject consist of more than one, the verb is plural. If the nominatives be of different persons, the verb takes the first person rather than the second, and the second rather than the third; as, ego et tu (=nos) valemus, I and you are well; tu et Cicero (=vos) valetis, you and Cicero are well.

2. Rule of Position. The preposition cum is always put after the ablative of the substantive personal pronouns; as, mecum, with me.

3. Rule of Position. The substantive personal pronouns, when connected by conjunctions to other words, stand first; as, tu et rex, you and the king.

Ego always precedes; as, ego et rex, the king and I; ego et tu, you and I.

4. Rule of Position. Contrasted words are put as near together, or as far apart as possible. Nos equitamus, ambulatis vos; or, equitamus nos, vos ambulatis.

Consul mercatores omnes ad se convocaverat. Poetæ carmina audiemus. Sapiens sese non laudat. Ego et tu apud Tullium cœnabamur. Improbi sese timent. Puer bonus in urbem nos ducet. Ye have walked five thousand paces (§ 66. 2.)

ADJECTIVE-PERSONAL, OR POSSESSIVE PRONOUNS.

§ 80. From the substantive pronouns are derived the adjective-personal, or possessive pronouns, so called, because they are adjectives, and denote possession. They are :

From mei ,	meus, mea, meum, my, mine. (Voc. masc. sing. carily meus ;) like bonus .
From tui ,	tuus, tua, tuum, thy, thine, your, (like bonus .)
From sui ,	suus, sua, suum, his, her, its, their, his own, her own, its own, their own.
From nostrī ,	noster, nostra, nostrum, our, ours, (like pulcher .)
From vestrī ,	vester, vestra, vestrum, your, yours, (like pulcher .)

Rem. 1. The emphatic suffixes met and pro are sometimes added to the possessive pronouns, especially in the relative singular: as, meamē manu, with my own hand.

Rem. 2. Suus, like tui, is always reflexive, referring to the subject of the sentence in which it stands.

EXERCISE 35.

§ 81. 1. Questions expecting the answer yes or no, are asked in Latin by means of the interrogative particles ne, nonne, num.

2. (a.) The enclitic ne asks for information, and is placed after the verb, usually standing with it at the beginning of the sentence.

Scribit-ne Caius? Is Caius writing?

Pater tuus tibi equum dedit-ne? Has your father given you a horse?

(b.) Ne stands with any specially emphatic word at the beginning of the sentence.

Tu-ne scribis? Are you writing?

3. Num stands at the beginning of the sentence, and expects the answer no.

Num tu patrem tuum necavisti? Have you murdered your own father?

4. Nonne (placed at, or near the beginning of the sentence,) expects the answer yes.

Nonne epistolam scripsisti? Have you not written the letter?

Vocabulary.

Scrib-ere, (scrips-, script-,) to write.

Con-scrib-ere, (conscript-, conscript-,) to lery, to enroll.

Relinqu-ere, (relinqui, relictum-) to leave.

Ven-ire, (ven-, vent-,) to come

Dorm-ire, to sleep.

Cubiculum, i, bed-chamber.

DEMONSTRATIVE PRONOUNS.

§ 82. 1. Demonstratives are so called, because they are used to point out things; as, ille puer, that boy; hæc silva, this forest.

2. They are is, hic, iste, ille, and their compounds, and are thus declined:

EXERCISE 39.

1. Sentences are either principal or dependent. A principal sentence makes complete sense when standing alone; a dependent sentence does not make complete sense alone, but must be connected with another sentence.

2. A sentence introduced by a relative pronoun is called a dependent relative sentence.

3. Rule of Syntax. The relative pronoun agrees with its antecedent in gender, number, and person; but its case depends upon the construction of the relative sentence.

As,

Ego qui scribo,	I who write.
Vos qui scribitis,	You who write.
Puella quam vidi,	The girl whom I saw.

(Here quam is sing., fem., 3rd person, because puella is the same; but accusative, because it is the object of the transitive verb vidi.)

4. Rule of Position. The preposition cum is annexed to the ablative plural of the relative qui, and sometimes also to the ablative singular; as, quibuscum.

5. Rule of Position. The relative generally stands at the beginning of the relative sentence, after the antecedent, and as near the latter as possible; but for the sake of emphasis the relative sentence is often placed first.

6. In general expressions the forms of is are often used merely as the antecedent of a relative clause; as, Is stultus est qui de se ipso prædicat. He is foolish who boasts of himself. Is is emphatic when it stands at the beginning of the principal sentence.

7. When the antecedent is indefinite, it is often omitted altogether; as, Qui tertiam partem incolunt Galli appellantur. (Those) who inhabit the third part are called Gauls. (Compare the English, "Who steal my purse, steals trash," i. e. any one who, &c.)

Cæsar will hasten into the province with three legions which he has levied in Gaul. The centurion has divided his field into three parts, one of which he will give to his son. Have you showed to your father the letter which the queen wrote with her own hand? The general had placed in winter-quarters the legions which he had levied in the province. The great river which we saw is the Rhine. Will not the general slay the robber who lives in the forest? Is not he (is) a fool who holds (tenere) a fierce bull by the horns? The fields through which we were walking are very fertile. (He) who boasts about himself is a fool. (He) who conquers himself is a brave man.

INTERROGATIVE PRONOUNS.

§ 88. 1. Interrogative pronouns are used in asking questions. They are Quis	}	Who?	What?	Qui	}	Which?	What?

Quisnam				Quinam

Rem. 1. Qui and quisnam are declined like the relative qui. They are almost always adjectives.

Rem. 2. Quis and quisnam are usually substantives, but sometimes adjectives. Quid is always a substantive. Quisnam is stronger than quis;—Who then? Who, pray?

2. Quis is thus declined :

Singular.			Plural.
M.	F.	N.	M.	F.	N.
N. quis,	quæ,	quod or quid,	qui,	quæ	quæ,
G. cujus.	cujus,	cujus.	quo rum,	qua rum,	quo rum,

Ac. quem,	quam,	quid,	quos,	quas,	quæ,
V. ———	———	———	———	———	———
Ab. quo,	qua,	quo.	qui bus,	qui bus,	qui bus.

3. The genitive cujus, whose? is sometimes used as an adjective, agreeing with the noun which it limits in gender, number and case : as, Cujum pecus est hoc? Whose flock is this? It is thus declined.

INDEFINITE PRONOUNS.

§ 89. Indefinite pronouns do not refer to any particular thing. They are Aliquis, some one, some.

Quidam, a certain one, pl. some.

Quivis, Quilibet, } any (where all are included,) any one you please.

Quisquam, any one, where all are excluded; almost always a substantive, and used in negative sentences.

Quispiam, any one, some one; used in affirmative sentences.

Quis, qui, any one, some one, especially after si, ne; and the interrogative prefixes num- and ec-, forming numquis and ecquis.

Quisque, each one, every one.

Unusquisque, each one, (stronger than quisque.)

Rem. 1. All these pronouns have quod or quid in the neuter; the quod forms are adjectives; the quid forms nouns.

Rem. 2. The indefinite quis or qui has qua in the nominative singular feminine, and nom., and acc. pl. neut. S also aliquis.

Rem. 3. Quidam, quilibet and quivis are declined like the relative qui; and quisque, quispiam and quisquam like the interrogative quis. But quisquam wants the feminine, except quam-quam, (acc. sing. fem.)

Note. In pronouns m is changed into n before d. As, quendam, for quemdam; quorundum for quorumdam.

Rem. 4. Unusquisque is used only in the singular, and both unus and quisque are declined. Unusquisque, uniquæque, unumquodque or quidque; gen. uniuscujusque, &c.

EXERCISE 41.

§ 90. 1. The partitive genitive (§ 58, 3) is used with many pronouns; as, Quirīs militum, any one you please of the soldiers; aliquid novi, some news, (novi is gen. sing. neut. of novus, a, um, used as a noun.)

2. After quidam, ex with the ablative is generally used instead of the gen.; as, Quidam ex militibus, a certain one of the soldiers.

Vocabulary.

Mitt-ere, (mis-, miss-,) to send.
 Perven-ire, (perven-, pervent-,) to come through, to arrive.
 In urbem pervenire, to reach the city.
 Defend-ere, (defend-, defens-,) to defend.
 Neque, (conjunction,) neither, nor.
 Disce-d-ere, (discess-, isces-,) to depart.
 Occid-ere, (occid-, occis-,) to kill, cut down.
 Occasus, is, setting.
 Sol, sol-is, sun; solis occasu, (§ 66, 1.) of sunset.

The master gave (to) each of the boys a beautiful book.

CORRELATIVE PRONOUNS.

§ 91. 1. The correlative pronouns are such as answer to each other; as, tantus, so great, quantus; as, talis, such, qualis; as, tot, as many, quot, as.

2. The Correlative Pronouns are

Demonstrative.	Relative.	Indefinite.
talis , such.	qualis , as, of what kind.	qualiscunque , of whatever kind.
tantus , so great, so much.	quantus , as great:	quantuscunque , however great.
* tot , so many.		aliquantus , somewhat great.
* totidem , just so many.	* quot , as many:	* aliquot , some.
		* quotquot , however many.

Rem. 1. Qualis? of what kind? quantus? how great? quot? how many? are also used interrogatively.

Rem. 2. Those marked thus (*) are indeclinable; the rest are declined like adjectives.

Such bread as Marius gives the soldiers will kill a dog.

VERBS.

§93. 1. A verb is a word which declares or affirms something.

2. That of which the declaration is made is called the subject.

3. Verbs have

(a) Moods, or different forms which express different kinds of affirmation; as, amo, I love; amarem, I might love.

(b) Tenses, or different forms to show the time when the thing declared takes place; as, amo, I love, I am loving; amabam, I was loving.

(c) Voices, or different forms which show whether the subject acts, (as, John strikes;) or is acted upon, (as, John is struck.)

(d) Persons and Numbers, or different forms which correspond with the person and number of the subject.

4. These various forms are distinguished from one another by certain endings; and the adding of these endings to the stem is called CONJUGATION.

5. Verbs are either transitive or intransitive.

6. A transitive verb is one which requires an object to complete the sense. As, Poeta reginam laudat, The poet praises the queen.

7. An intransitive verb is one which does not require an object to complete the sense. As, Aquila volat, The eagle flies.

MOODS.

§94. 1. There are four moods, the indicative, subjunctive, imperative, and infinitive.

2. The indicative mood declares a fact, or asks a question. As, amat, he loves; amat-ne? Does he love?

3. By the subjunctive mood a thing is asserted, not as a fact, but as simply conceived in the mind. As, amarem, I would love.

4. The imperative mood is used in commanding, exhorting, or entreating. As, Huc veni, come hither.

5. The infinitive mood expresses the action of the verb simply, without reference to any subject. As, amare, to love.

TENSES.

§95. There are three divisions of time, the present, past and future. In each division there are two tenses; one expressing incomplete action; the other, completed action. There are therefore six tenses; three for incomplete action viz: the present, imperfect, and future; and three for completed action, viz: the present-perfect, past-perfect, and future-perfect.

Name.	Incomplete Action.	Name.	Completed Action.	Name.
PRESENT TIME.	amo. I am loving.	PRES.	amavi. I have loved.	PRES.-P.
PAST TIME.	amabam. I was loving.	IMP.	amaveram. I had loved.	PAST-P.
FUTURE TIME.	amabo. I shall love.	FUT.	amavero. I shall have loved.	FUT.-P.

I. The present tense expresses incomplete action in present time; as, amo, I love, I am loving.

Rem. 1. This tense also expresses an existing custom or general truth; as, Romani signum tuba dant, the Romans give the signal with a trumpet.

Rem. 2. The present tense is often used for a past to give greater animation to the narrative. This is called the historical present.

Rem. 3. This tense may also express what has existed and still exists; as, tot annos bella gero, for so many years I have waged war, and am still waging it; or, for so many years I have been waging war.

II The imperfect tense expresses incomplete action in past time; as, amabam, I was loving.

Rem. 1. This tense expresses.

- (a) A customary past action; as, amabam, I used to love;
- (b) What had existed and was still existing in past time; as, tot annos bella gerebam, for so many years I had been carrying on war;
- (c) The beginning, or interrupting of a thing in past time;

(d) In letters, this tense is sometimes used (in reference to their sing read,) for a present.

III. The future tense expresses incomplete action in future time. As, amabo, I shall love.

IV The present-perfect tense expresses completed action in present time; as, amavi, I have loved.

The same form of the verb is used to express an action indefinitely as past, without reference to its continuance or completion. This is called the aorist-perfect, or indefinite-perfect. As, cœnavi, I supped, (at some indefinite past me.)

V The past-perfect tense expresses completed action in past time; as, amaveram, I had loved.

VI. The future-perfect tense expresses completed action in future time; as, amavero, I shall have loved.

VOICES.

§96. 1. There are two voices, the active and passive.

2. The active voice represents the subject as acting; as, amo, I love.

3. The passive voice represents the subject as acted-upon; as, amormor, I am loved.

Rem. 1. The same idea may be expressed both in the active and passive form; as, puer librum legit, the boy reads the book; or liber puero legitur, the book is read by the boy. The object in the active becomes the subject in the passive, and the subject in the active is expressed by the ablative with the preposition a or ab.

Rem. 2. As intransitive verbs have no object in the active, they have no personal passive form. See § 114, 4.

Rem. 3. The passive voice frequently represents the agent as acting upon himself; as, feror, I carry myself, I go. This use of the passive is common with the poets.

PERSONS AND NUMBERS.

§ 97 Verbs have three persons, the 1st, 2nd, and 3rd; and two numbers, the singular and plural. These either correspond to, or indicate, the person and number of the subject.

* PARTICIPLES, GERUNDS, SUPINES.

§ 98. 1. To the verb belong the participle, or adjective verb; and the gerund and supine, or noun verb.

2. Transitive verbs have two participles in the active. viz. : the present and future; as, amans, loving; amaturus, about to love; — and two in the passive, viz. ; the perfect and future; as, amatus, loved, having been loved amandus, to be loved.

3. The gerund is a verbal noun of the second declension in the genitive, dative, and accusative, (the nominative being supplied by the infinitive); as, modus operandi, the manner of working.

4. The supine is a verbal noun of the fourth declension in the accusative and ablative; as, amatum, to love; amatu, to be loved, or to love.

CONJUGATION.

§ 99. 1. There are four conjugations, distinguished from each other by the ending of the infinitive present active.

The infinitive present active of the 1st conj. ends in a-re.

"	"	"	"	"	"	2nd	"	"	"	e-re .
"	"	"	"	"	"	3rd	"	"	"	e-re .
"	"	"	"	"	"	4th	"	"	"	i-re .

Exception. Dare, to give, has, are (a short.)

2. Every verb-form consists of two parts, the stem and ending.

3. The present-stem, or general-stem, is found in every part of the verb, and may always be obtained by striking off the ending of the infinitive-present active or passive.

4. Besides this general stem, there is also a perfect-stem, on which the perfect tenses in the active voice are formed; and a supine-stem, on which the supines, the future active participle, and perfect passive participle, are formed.

5. The perfect-stem is formed for the most part

In the first conj. by adding -av (long) to the present-stem.

“ “ second “ “ “ -u “ “ “

“ “ third “ “ “ -s “ “ “

“ “ fourth “ “ “ -iv (long) “ “ “

For other modes of formation see Appendix.

6. The supine-stem is generally formed

In the first conj. by adding -at (long) to the present-stem.

“ “ second “ “ “ -it (short) “ “ “

“ “ third “ “ “ -t “ “ “

“ “ fourth “ “ “ -it (long) “ “ “

For other modes of formation see Appendix VII.

EXERCISE 33.

(Some verbs which insert i.)

- Cap-ere*, (cap-cap-t-) to take, (with its compounds).
Re-cap-ere, (re-cap-recept-) to take back.
Re-cap-ere se, to take oneself back, to retreat.
Ac-cap-ere, (ac-cap-ac-cept-) to receive, take to oneself.
Cup-ere, (cup-piv-cup-it-) to desire.
Fac-ere, (fac-fact-) to do, to make.
Con-fic-ere, (con-fic-confect-) to finish.
Rap-ere, (rap-u-rapt-) to seize, carry off.
Di-rip-ere, (di-rip-u-di-rept-) to plunder.

Rem. 1. The imperative present active 2d singular of facio is fac, and the passive is supplied by the irregular verb fio, (§ 111, 7). The compounds which change a into i have the regular passive; as, conficior, confici, confectus:

but those which retain the a have the irregular passive, as, patefacio, pass., patefio, patefieri, patefactus.

Hostes, qui per provinciam iter tentaverant, in fines suos se receperunt. Cæsar ab Helvetiis obsides et arma acceperat. Imperator aurum quod a rege acceperat, militibus dedit. Milites prælium facere cupiverunt. Cæsar decem diebus pontem confecit. Romani virgines Sabinorum rapuerunt. Hostes atroces totam urbem diripient.

The enemy will retreat from the mountain to the river. The king will lay-waste the country (agros) which he has conquered, with fire and sword. Our horsemen had made an attack upon the enemy's footmen. The forces of the enemy, that were making a journey through our province, plundered many villages. The lieutenant, with five legions which he had received from Cæsar, hastened into the boundaries of the Æduans. The consul will not finish the bridge in six days. The general desires to make an end of the war.

For peculiarities of tense formation and conjugation, and composition of verbs, see Appendix.

§ 108. EXERCISE 44. THE PASSIVE CONSTRUCTION.

I. The same idea may be expressed both in the active and passive form; as, Helvetii legatos mittunt, the Hel-vetians send ambassadors; or, Legati ab Helvetiis mittuntur, Ambassadors are sent by the Helvetians.

2. The object in the active becomes the subject in the passive; and the subject in the active is expressed by the ablative with the preposition a or ab. (ABLATIVE OF THE AGENT.)

Rem. 1. If the ablative expresses, not the agent, or doer of the action, but only the cause, means, instrument, the preposition will not be used. As, stimulus bove in concitat, the goad urges on the ox; passive, bos stimulo concitatur, the ox is urged on with the goad.

Rem. 2. As intransitive verbs have no object in the active, they are not used personally in the passive.

3. Rule of Syntax. Verbs which in the active take another case in addition to the object-accusative, in the passive retain that other case; as, magister puero^l librum dat; passive, liber puero a magistro datur.

DEPONENT VERBS.

§ 109. 1. Deponent verbs are such as have a passive form with an active meaning.

They are called deponent, (laying aside,) because they lay aside their active form and passive meaning.

2. They are inflected throughout like passive verbs, and have also the gerund, participles, and supine of the active voice. The perfect and future passive participles, the infinitive-future passive, and the latter supine, have also a passive meaning.

A wise man always confesses his faults. Davus confessed his love for (use gen.) the maid-servant. The brave son will avenge his father's death. Our skirmishers delayed the journey of the enemy many hours. The prudent consul will not suffer the enemy to lead their forces through the most fertile part of Gaul. To lie is the basest of all things. The thief had confessed all his crimes. The general on the sixth day measured (out) corn to the soldiers.

It is easier to imitate vice than virtue. The Æduans, having contended with Ariovistus, king of the Germans, were conquered. Our men will attempt to follow the enemy through the forest.

IRREGULAR VERBS.

§ 111. 1. Irregular verbs do not use, in some of their parts formed from the present-stem, the endings of either of the four conjugations.

2. They are, esse, to be; velle, to be willing; ferre, to bear; edere or esse, to eat; fieri, to be made, to become; ire, to go; quære, to be able; and their compounds.

DEFECTIVE VERBS.

§ 113. 1. Defective verbs are such as want some of their parts.

2. There are many verbs which are not used in all the tenses. The following list contains such as are most defective :

Odi, I hate.	Fari, to speak.	Cedo, tell, or give me.
Cœpi, I have begun.	Quæso, I beseech.	Confit, it is done.
Memini, I remember.	Ave, { hail.	Defit, it is wanting.
Aio, { I say.	Salve, {	Infit, he begins.
Inquam, {	Apagē, begone.	Ovat, he rejoices.

Rem. 1 Odi, cœpi, and memini are used for the most part, in the perfect tenses, and hence are sometimes called preteritive verbs.

(The pupil will make paradigms by adding the endings of the perfect tenses to the stems od-, cœp-, and memin-.)

Rem. 2. Odi has also the participles os-us, and os-urus, (both active in sense,) and the deponent form os-us sum.

Rem. 3. Cœpi has also cœptus and cœpturus.

Rem. 4. Memini has the imperative forms memento, mementote.

Rem. 5. The tenses of odi and memini, though perfect in form, express incomplete action; thus, oderam, I hated; odero, I shall hate; memini, I have kept in mind, therefore I remember; memineram, I remembered. The perfects novi and consuevi have a similar meaning; thus, nosco, I find out, novi, I have found out, I know; consuesco, I accustom myself; consuevi, I am accustomed.

IMPERSONAL VERBS.

§ 114. 1. Verbs used only in the third person, and not admitting of a personal subject, are called Impersonal.

2. An infinitive, or a sentence used as a noun, is usually the subject of an impersonal verb in the active voice. In English the pronoun it usually stands before the verb, as, Caium scribere delectat, it delights Caius to write.

3. The various tenses of impersonal verbs are formed by adding the endings of the third person singular to the proper tense stem.

 2nd. " dec-, [perf. dec-u-] of dec-et, it becomes.
 3rd. " contig-, [perf. contig-] of contig-it, it happens.
 4th. " even-, [perf. even-] of evenit, it turns out, happens.)

4. Many verbs, not strictly impersonal, are used impersonally; as, delectat, it delights.

5. Most intransitive, and many transitive verbs are used impersonally in the passive voice, the agent being either omitted, or put in the ablative with the preposition a or ab; as, Helvetii fortiter pugnauerunt; pass., ab Helvetiis fortiter pugnatum est, the Helvetians fought bravely, or it was fought bravely by the Helvetians.

EXERCISE 47.

Pugn-are, to fight.

Consul-ere, (consul-, consult-) to consult. Ab utrisque, by both parties.

Ven-ire, (ven-, vent-) to come.

Ire, (§ 111, 9.) to go.

Vesper, -er-i, evening.

Calamitas, -at-is, disaster.

Acrius, (adv.) actively, fiercely.

Utrique, (adv.) on both sides.

Diu, (adv.) a long time.

In-ferre, (intul, illat-) to bring upon, inflict. See § 111, 6.

Rem. Impersonal verbs which are transitive in meaning, have a direct object in the accusative.

PARTICLES.

§ 116. Those parts of speech which are not inflected, are called particles. They are adverbs, prepositions, conjunctions, and interjections.

ADVERBS.

§ 117. 1. An adverb is a word used to limit the meaning of a verb, adjective, or another adverb. Some adverbs also limit nouns.

2. In respect to form adverbs are primitive or derivative.

3. In respect to meaning adverbs may be divided into several classes; as,

TEMPORAL, denoting time; as, hodie, to-day; cras, to-morrow.

LOCAL, denoting place; as, ibi, there; inde, thence.

MODAL, denoting manner; as, bene, well; male, badly.

NEGATIVE; as, non, not; ne-quidem, not even.

4. Some adverbs are also correlative, and such are derived from pronouns.

DEMONSTRATIVE.	RELATIVE.	INTERROG.	DEFINITE.
{ ibi , there .	{ ubi , where .	{ ubi , where?	{ alicubi , somewhere .
{ ibidem , just there .	{ ubique , wherever .	{ ubique , everywhere .	{ ubique , everywhere .
{ inde , thence .	{ unde , whence .	{ unde?	{ ubique , wherever you please .
{ inde , thence .	{ undecumque .	{ unde?	{ alicunde ,
			{ undique ,
			{ undevis .
{ eo , to this place .	{ quo , whither .	{ quo?	{ aliquo ,
{ eodem .	{ quoque .	{ quo?	{ quoque .
	{ quocumque .	{ quando?	{ quolibet .
{ tum , then .	{ cum or quum , when .	{ quando?	{ aliquando ,
{ tum , then .	{ quando , when .	{ quando?	{ quandolibet et
	{ quandoque .
	{ quandocumque .

5. Derivative adverbs are formed for the most part from adjectives and participles by adding -e to the stem if the primitive be of the second declension; and -iter, (sometimes -ter) if the primitive be of the third declension; as, liber, free;—adv. liber-e, freely; brevi, short; breviter, shortly.

6. Some adverbs are derived from nouns by adding -tus or -tim to the stem with a connecting vowel; as, cæl-i-tus (cæl-um) from heaven; greg-a-tim, (grex) in flocks.

7 Cases of nouns, adjectives, and pronouns are used as adverbs; as, noctu, by night; multum, much; multo, by much; eo, (old accusative, for eon,) to that place.

EXERCISE 48.

§ 118. 1. Rule of Syntax. Intransitive verbs, though they do not admit of a direct object, may have a remote object in the dative.

2. Rule of Syntax. The dative expresses the person or thing for whose advantage or disadvantage anything is, or is done. (Dative of ADVANTAGE or DISADVANTAGE.)

3. Rule of Position. The adverb usually precedes the word it limits; but fere usually stands between the adjective and noun; as, omnes fere homines, almost all men.

NOTE. Many verbs which are transitive in English are intransitive in Latin.

Vocabulary.

Fort-iter, (fort-i,) bravely.

Celer-iter, (celer,) swiftly.

Beat-e, (beatus,) happily.

Bene, (bon-us,) well.

Fere, almost.

The prudent general was unwilling to lead his army through the by-paths of the forest. This boy can easily swim across a very deep river. The enemy will not attempt to break through our line-of-battle.

COMPARISON OF ADVERBS.

§ 119. Adverbs derived from adjectives are generally compared like their primitives. The comparative is like the neuter comparative of the adjective; the superlative is formed from the superlative of the adjective by changing us into e; as, facile, facilius, facillime; celeriter, celerius, celerrime.

Rem. 1. The superlative of the adverb sometimes ends in o or um; as, meritissimo, primum.

Rem. 2. If the comparison of the adjective is irregular or defective, that of the adverb is so likewise; as, bene, melius, optime; male, pejus, pessime; parum, minus, minime; multum, plus, plurimum; prius, primo or primum; ocius, ocissime; deterius, deterrime; potius, potissime or potissimum; merito, meritissimo; satis, satius. Magis, maxime, has no positive; and nuper, nuperrime, has no comparative.

Rem. 3. Notice also the following: prope, propius, proxime; diu, diutius, diutissime; sæpe, sæpius, sæpissime; secus, secius.

PREPOSITIONS.

§ 120. Prepositions express the relation between a noun or pronoun and some other word.

1. Twenty-six prepositions are followed by the accusative:

ad, to, towards, at.
adversus, } against,
adversum, } towards.
apud, at, with.
circa, } around.
circum, }
ciriter, about, near.
eis, }
extra, } on this side.
contra, against.
erga, towards.

extra, without, beyond.
infra, under, beneath.
inter, between, among.
intra, within.
juxta, next to.
ob, for, on account of.
per, in the power of.
per, through.
pone, behind.

post, after, since.
præter, past, besides.
prope, near.
propter, on account of.
secundum, after, next to, according to.
supra, above.
trans, over, beyond.
ultra, beyond.

2. Twelve prepositions are followed by the ablative.

a, } from, after, &c.	coram, in presence of.	ob, in presence of. ab, } from, after, &c.	cum, with.	pro, before, in comparison.
absq, } without.	de, down from, off, &c. concerning.	sub, under.
absque, without.	ex, out of.	super, above, instead of.
clam, without the knowledge of.		super, above.
		ter, up to.

3. Four prepositions are followed by the accusative, when motion to a place is implied: the ablative, when rest in a place is implied:

in, in, on, into, upon.	super, above, above.
sub, under, near.	subter, under, beneath.

Rem. 1. Clam is sometimes followed by the accusative.

Rem. 2. Tenus is placed after its case: and cum is annexed to the ablative of the substantive personal and relative pronouns.

Rem. 3. A and e are used only before consonants: ad and ex, before vowels and consonants.

The pupil will find the various other meanings of the prepositions from his own reading.

Without any doubt virtue is a more excellent thing (præstantius) than gold. This song displeases me (dative, § 118, 1) more than that (one) pleases me. Reliquus, a, um, remaining.

Belgæ reliqui, the re. of the Belgians.

Aer, aeris, the air.

Celum, i, [pl. i or a.] heaven.

Jub-ere, [juss-; juss-;] to order.

Con-ven-ire, [ven-; -vent-;] to come together.

Con-duc-ere, [con-dux-; -duct-;] to lead together.

Dis-ferre, [dis-tul-; di-lat-;] to defer.

Dis-sent-ire, [dissens-; dissens-;] to disagree, differ in opinion.

Con-jung-ere, [conjunx-; con-junct-;] to join.

Con-jur-are, to swear together, conspire.

Se-ced-ere, [secess-; secess-;] to secede.

Se-cer-ere, [secer-; secer-;] to separate.

* Always written cum, when standing alone.

The Remians differed in opinion from the rest of the Belgians. These wicked citizens are conspiring against the republic. The Germans will not easily break through our line. The enemy's forces are not far from the town.

CONJUNCTIONS.

§ 123. Conjunctions connect words and sentences. They are commonly divided into the following classes:

1. COPULATIVE, which connect things that are to be considered together—(and); they are, et, ac, atque, neque, etiam, quoque, item, and et idem.

Rem. 1. Et connects things which are independent of each other, and of equal importance; as, M. Pisone et M. Mesala consulibus. Et—et is to be translated both—and; as, et rex et regina, both the king and the queen. It sometimes means also.

Rem. 2. Que (enclitic) introduces a mere appendage, the two constituting but one idea, and is rather adjunctive than copulative; as, gladiis pilisque—offensive armor.

Rem. 3. Atque, (used before vowels or consonants,) contracted into ac (used before consonants only,) is compounded of ad and que, and means and in addition: it usually introduces something of greater importance; as, in hostes impetum fecit atque eos fugavit,—and routed them too. Cognostine hos versus? Ac memoriter. “—and that too by heart.” This peculiar force is often lost in ac, and it is used alternately with et; it is preferred in subdivisions, the main propositions being connected by et. Difficile est tantam causam et diligentia consequi, et memoria complecti, et oratione expromere et voce ac viribus sustinere.

Rem. 4. Neque or nec, and not, compounded of ne and que, when repeated, is translated neither—nor. Et non is used instead when only one word, and not a whole sentence, is to be negated; as patrior et non moleste fero. Et non is frequently used also when et precedes. Nec non, neque non, the two negatives destroying each other, is equivalent to et; but is used, in classical prose, only to connect sentences, and the two words are separated.

Rem. 5. Etiam (et-jam), also, even, has a wider meaning than quoque, and adds a new circumstance, while quoque is used when a thing of a similar kind is added.

Rem. 6. The copulative conjunctions are frequently omitted in animated discourse. Copias suas in proximum collem subducit, aciem instruit. This omission is called asyndeton (not-tied-together.)

2. DISJUNCTIVE, which connect things that are to be considered separately, (either, or); they are aut, vel, ve, sive, seu, and the interrogative particle an.

Rem. 7. Aut, either, or, expresses an essential difference in things, and ordinarily implies that one thing excludes another; as, aut vivit aut mortuus est, he is either living or dead. Aut and ve serve to continue a negation, where in English we use nor; as, Verres non Honori aut Virtuti vota debebat.

Rem. 8. Vel, on the other hand, (akin to velle,) indicates a difference of expression merely, and is used where either of two or more things may be taken indifferently. Conjunctio ceterorum oppidum vel urbs appellatur,—a town or city (whichever you please.) Vel imperatore, vel milite me utimur. When one of the alternatives is omitted, vel often has the sense of even. Volo ut opperire sex dies modo. Vel sex menses opperitor, “I wish you to wait six days only.”—“I will wait even six months,” i. e. six days or six months, if you choose. Vel is merely vel apocopated.

Rem. 9. Sive, seu, ex if, whether, or, is strictly either conditional or interrogative, and when used as a simple disjunctive always implies a doubt, at least in the earlier writers. Thus, Cæsar. B. G. Sive casu, sive deorum immortalium providentia. Sive Cicerone perterriti, sive epulantis induci: (“perhaps by one, perhaps by the other,—I do not know by which.”)

3. ADVERSATIVE, which express opposition of thought, (but); they are sed, autem, verum, enim, at and its compounds, tamen and its compounds, and ceterum.

Rem. 10. Sed denotes strong and direct opposition. Vera dixi, sed nequidquam, quoniam non vis credere. No bestia, sed homo.

Rem. 11. Autem adds something that is different, without setting aside what precedes: (on the contrary, however, on the other hand, but). Cygnus a nullo videtur: ipse autem cuncta videtur. Frequently it simply marks a transition, or adds a more important circumstance, (moreover, furthermore).

Rem. 12. Verum, (as to the truth, in fact, &c.), is nearly the same in meaning as sed. It is strengthened by enimvero, (but indeed, but in fact, but assuredly).

Rem. 13. Vero, (in truth, assuredly, but, however), does not express as strong opposition as cum, just as enim is weaker than sed. Ubi per eam locum Cæsar certior factus est tres jam copiarum partes Helvetios ab ipso transiisse, quartam vero per eum circum flumen Ródanum reliquam esse. — “That the fourth part, however, &c.”

Rem. 14. At does not, like sed, alter or set aside what precedes, but expresses a contrast, or even a strong one. Brevis a natura nobis vita data est, at momentum brevis est a viarum longitudo. It frequently follows sed in the sense of at least: sed non in pluripluribus at amicis- imus. It frequently introduces an objection, and enim is then often added to assign a reason for the objection: "at sumus," inquunt, "civitatis principes."

Rem. 15. Atqui admits what precedes, but opposes something else to it. Magnum narras, vix credibile: atqui sic habet;—"yet such is the fact." It is used in hypothetical syllogisms, when a thing is assumed which had before been left undecided. Quodsi virtutes sunt: pares inter se, pari etiam vitia esse necesse est: atqui pares esse virtutes facile potest perspicere.

Rem. 16. Ceterum, literally, "as to the rest," is frequently used in the sense of sed.

4. CAUSAL, which express a cause or reason (for, because); they are, nam, namque, enim, etenim, quia, quod, quoniam, quippe, quam, quando, quando-quidem, siquidem.

Rem. 17. Nam, namque, enim, and etenim, "for," are rather corroborative or confirmatory than causal conjunctions; i. e. they introduce a proof rather than state a cause.

Nam shows the grounds of a preceding assertion: so also enim, except that the assertion must frequently be supplied by the mind. Enim is originally only a corroborative adverb, truly, certainly, co-be-sure, indeed. In namque and etenim, que and et repeat the preceding assertion, while nam and enim introduce the proof.

Rem. 18. Quod (acc. sing. neut. of qui) means originally with respect to what, in what respect, in that; and hence its causal meaning, in as much as, because. Quod omnis Gallia ad septentrionem vergit, maturæ sunt hiemes. It is very often preceded by propterea, hoc, ob hanc causam, and similar causal expressions.

Rem. 19. Quod is very often used merely to connect a sentence with that which precedes, and may be translated "and" or "but," especially with si, nisi, &c. In such cases it is a relative pronoun, accusative of limitation, (§ 155.) Quod si veteris contumeliæ oblivisci vellet. Quod si furore et amentia impulsus bellum intulisset.

Rem. 20. Quia (acc. pl. neut. of qui) has the same origin as quod, but is purely causal (because), and never has the sense of that, or in that, like quod. When contrasted with quod, it expresses a real motive or reason, while quod expresses merely an alleged or pretended reason; (non quod —, sed quia.)

Rem. 21. Quoniam, (quum—jam.) introduces a well-known reason, since then, since as everybody knows.

Rem. 22. Quippe is originally a corroborative adverb, (indeed, and hence derives its causal meaning. It is frequently united with relative words to express a subjective reason.

Rem. 23. In quum, quando, quarobrem, the causal idea is derived from that of time; (compare the English since.) Siquidem is conditional originally. (though the antepenult has become short.)

Antiquissimum e doctis genus est poetarum, siquidem (if indeed, as every one admits,—since,) Homerus fuit et Hesiodus ante Romanum conditum.

5. CONCLUSIVE, which express a conclusion or inference, (therefore); they are, ergo, eo, ideo, idcirco, igitur, itaque, proinde, propterea, and the relative words quapropter, quare, quarobrem, quocirca, unde.

Rem. 24. Ergo and igitur express a logical consequence, (therefore), while itaque expresses a natural consequence, (and so.) Ergo and eo are causal ablatives, and all the other conclusives may be considered adverbial expressions of cause or result, limiting the predicate.

6. FINAL, which express purpose or result,—end, (that, in order that); they are, ut, ne, quo, quoniam, quominus, utroque, neque.

7. CONDITIONAL, which express a condition (if, unless); they are, si, sin, nisi, or ni, dum, modo, dummodo.

8. CONCESSIVE, which express something granted (although); they are, etsi, quancquam, tametsi, tamenetsi, etiamsi, licet, quavis, quantumvis, quamlibet; ut and quum, in the sense of although.

TEMPORAL, expressing time, (when, as soon as, after, before); they are, quum, ut, ubi, postquam, posteaquam, antequam, priusquam, quando, simulac, simul, dum, donec, quoad.

0. COMPARATIVE, expressing comparison (than, as); they are, quam, sicut, velut, prout, tanquam, quasi, utsi, acsi, with ac and atque, in the sense of as or than.

Rem. 25. The following conjunctions stand always at the beginning of a sentence, viz.: et, etenim, ac, at, atque, atque, neque, nec, ut, vel, sive, sin, sed, nam, verum, and the relatives quare, quocirca, namobrem.

Rem. 26. Enim, autem, and vero are placed after the first word, or the second, if the first two belong together; rarely after three or more words.

Rem. 27. The other conjunctions usually stand at the beginning, unless some word or expression is especially emphatic, and is therefore placed first in the sentence.

INTERJECTIONS.

§ 124. Interjections are used to express strong or sudden motion; as, Væ nobis! Wee to us!

SYNTAX.

§ 125. 1. Syntax treats of the construction of sentences.

2. A sentence is a thought expressed in words; as, snow melts.

3. Every sentence consists of

(a.) A predicate; i. e. that which is declared;

(b.) A subject; i. e. that of which the declaration is made.

4. The predicate is a verb alone, (as melts, in the above example,) or the verb esse, to be, with a noun, adjective, or participle; as, nix gelida est, snow is cold.

5. The subject is a noun, or some word or phrase used as a noun, and may be known by asking the question who? or what? with the predicate; as, John runs. (Who runs? John.) To play is pleasant. (What is pleasant? To play.)

6. The subject and predicate may stand alone, or each may have words or sentences limiting its meaning. Thus, Prima luce, quum mons a Tito Labieno teneretur, idem Considius qui cum exploratoribus præmissus erat, equo admissus, ad Cæsarem occurrit. At daylight, when the mountain was held by Titus Labienus, the same Considius who had been sent forward with the scouts, runs to Cæsar with his horse at full speed.

Here the leading thought is Considius occurrit, Considius runs. The subject is limited by the adjective idem, and the adjective sentence, qui—præmissus erat. The predicate is limited by prima luce, designating the point of time when Considius ran; by quum mons teneretur, farther specifying the time or circumstances of the running; by equo admissus, participial sentence, expressing the manner of the running,—an adverbial limitation; and by ad Cæsarem, the point to which the running was directed.

7 A sentence consisting of a single subject, and a single predicate, is commonly called a simple sentence; and one which consists of two or more simple sentences combined, is commonly called a compound sentence.

AGREEMENT.

§ 126. RULE I. The verb agrees with its subject in number and person.

Rem. 1. (1.) If the subject consists of more than one, the verb is plural; as, Furor iraque mentem præcipitant, Fury and rage hurry on my mind. Hence,

(a.) A collective noun may have a plural verb.

(b.) A noun connected to an ablative with cum often has a plural verb; as, Bocchus cum peditibus postremam aciem invadunt, Bocchus and the footmen attack the rear.

(c.) A plural verb is sometimes used with uterque and quisque.

(2.) But the verb often agrees with the nearest nominative, especially when the nouns denote things without life; as, Mens, enim ratio, et consilium in senibus est, For mind, and skill, and wisdom are in old men.

(3.) If the nominatives are of different persons, the verb takes the first person rather than the second, and the second rather than the third; as, Si tu et Tullia valetis, ego et Cicero valemus, If you and Tullia are well, Cicero and I are well.

APPOSITION.

§ 127. A noun limiting another, and denoting the same person or thing, is said to be in apposition with it.

RULE II. Nouns in apposition agree in case; as, Jugurtha rex, Jugurtha the king.

Rem. 1. A noun in apposition often expresses character, purpose, time, cause, &c.; as, Cicero prætor legem Manilianam suadet, consul advocates the Manilian law, when prætor (or, as prætor), advocated the Manilian law, when consul, &c.

Rem. 2. The personal pronoun is often omitted before a noun in apposition with it; as, Consul dixi, I, the consul, have said.

Rem. 3. A noun in apposition with two or more nouns is put in the plural; as, Jugurtha et Bocchus, reges, Jugurtha and Bocchus, kings.

Rem. 4. The ablative is used in apposition with the name of a town in the genitive; (see Rule XXXI. Exc.) as, Corinthi, Achaie æbe, at Corinth, city of Achaia.

Rem. 5. A noun may be in apposition with a sentence; as, Cogit oratorem institui,—rem arduam; Let him reflect that an orator is training,—a difficult thing.

Rem. 6. Expressions denoting the parts are often placed in apposition with a noun denoting the whole;—Partitive apposition,—as, Onervæ, pars maxima ad Ægimurum,—aliæ adversus urbem ipsam delatæ sunt; the transports were carried, the greatest part to Ægimurum,—others, opposite the city itself. Quisque in partitive apposition with a noun is in the nominative; as, Multi sibi quisque imperium petentibus, While many were seeking power, each for himself.

Rem. 7. A proper name with nomen or cognomen may be, (a.) in the same case; as, Nomen Arcturus mihi est, I have the name Arcturus;—(b.) in the genitive; as, Nomen Arcturi, &c.:—(c.) by attraction, in the dative, if the verb is followed by a dative: as, Nomen Arcturo mihi est, I have the name Arcturus.

ADJECTIVES.

§ 128. An adjective may limit the subject; as, puella pulchra saltat, the beautiful girl dances;—or it may form part of the predicate; as, puella pulchra est, the girl is beautiful. In either case

RULE III. Adjective words agree with the nouns to which they refer, in gender, number, and case.

Rem. 1. An adjective belonging to two or three nouns is put in the plural. If the nouns are of the same gender, the adjective is of that gender; as, Lupus et agnus siti compulsi. A wolf and a lamb compelled by thirst. When the nouns are of different genders. If (a.) they denote living things, the adjective is masculine rather than feminine; as, Pater mihi et mater mortui sunt, My father and mother are dead.

(b.) If they denote things without life, the adjective is generally neuter; Ira et avaritia imperio potentiora erant, Rage and avarice were stronger than government.

(c.) If names of living things and things without life are combined, the adjective is sometimes neuter, and sometimes takes the gender of the living being. Numidæ atque signa militaria obscurati sunt, The Numidians and their military standards were concealed. (Here the idea of persons is uppermost.) Inimica sunt libera civitas et rex, A free state and a king are hostile things.

Rem. 2. The adjective, however, often agrees with the nearest noun.

Rem. 3. An adjective word, especially in the predicate, often agrees with the sense of the noun rather than its form. (construunt ad significationem). As, Partes in flumen adductæ. Part were driven into the river.

Rem. 4. An adjective word in the predicate, instead of agreeing with the subject, often agrees

(a.) With a noun in apposition with the subject, (especially the words urbis, oppidum): as, Corinthus, lumen Græciæ, extinctum est. Corinth, the light of Greece, was destroyed. [put out.]

(b.) With a predicate noun: as, Gens universa Veneti appellata. The whole race were called Veneti.

Rem. 5. An adjective without a noun is often used as a noun or adverb.

Rem. 6. In general expressions an adjective in the predicate is often neuter: as, Lupus triste est spectabile. The wolf is a sad thing to the fields.

Rem. 7. A possessive pronoun, being equivalent to the genitive of the substantive pronoun, may have an adjective word in the genitive agreeing with it: as, me ipsius causa, for my own sake;—or a noun in the genitive in apposition with it: as, meus, viri fortis, proflis.

Rem. 8. The adjectives primus, medius, ultimus, extremus, summus, infimus, unus, secundus, supremus, reliquus, and ceterus, express the first part, middle part, &c.: as, summus mons, the top of the mountain.

Rem. 9. An adjective often agrees with the subject, but limits the predicate: as, Præus cecidit, he fell headlong.

RELATIVES.

§ 129. RULE IV The relative pronoun agrees with its antecedent in gender, number, and person: but its case depends upon the construction of the relative sentence. As,

* Ego qui scribo.	I who write.
Vos qui scribitis.	You who write.
Puella quam vidi.	The girl whom I saw.

Rem. 1. The antecedent is so called because it usually goes before the relative sentence. But it also stands,

(a) In the relative sentence especially when this latter is emphatic: In quem primum egressi sunt locum, Troja vocatur. The place upon which they first disembarked is called Troia.

(b) Both in the principal and relative sentence: as Erant omnino itinera duo, quibus itineribus domo exire possent.

Rem. 2. The antecedent, especially when indefinite, is often omitted; as, Qui bene vivit beate vivit.

Rem. 3. ATTRACTION. The relative is sometimes attracted into the case of the antecedent: as, optimum quibus quisque poterat cibus. The antecedent is sometimes attracted into the case of the relative; as, urbem quam statuo videra est.

Rem. 4. The relative often agrees with a noun in apposition with the antecedent; as, flumen Rhodanus, qui agrum Helvetium a Germanis dividit.

Rem. 5. A relative or demonstrative usually agrees with a predicate noun after the verb esse or a verb of naming, esteeming, &c., instead of agreeing with the antecedent; as, Theba, quod Boetia caput est. Animal quem vocamus hominem.

But if the predicate noun is a foreign word, the relative agrees with the antecedent: as, genus hominum quod Helotes vocatur.

Rem. 6. A numeral, comparative, or superlative, which in English limits the antecedent, is usually placed in the relative sentence; as, nocte quam in terris ultimam egit, on the last night which he spent on earth. Other adjectives have sometimes a similar position.

Rem. 7. The relative often agrees with the sense of the antecedent, instead of its form, [Constructio ad synesin]; as, Cesar equitatum praemittit qui videant.

Rem. 8. An explanatory noun is often introduced into the relative sentence; as, ante comitia, quod tempus haud longe aberat.

Rem. 9. Qui at the beginning of a sentence is often translated like a demonstrative; as, Quibus rebus cognitis, these things being found out. Here also observe the idiomatic expression, quae est temperantia, or quae est temperantia [ablative of quality], instead of pro tua temper- antia; as, tu, quæ est temperantia, jam vales, you, such is your temperance, are already well.

Rem. 10. The adverbial is often used for the adjectival relative; as, locus unde venit, the place from which he came.

THE CASES. NOMINATIVE.

§ 130. 1. The subject of a finite verb is in the nominative, and is called the subject nominative.

2. A noun in the predicate denoting the same thing as the subject, after a verb expressing an incomplete idea, is in the nominative, and is called the predicate nominative; as, Caius et Lucius fratres fuerunt.

3. A predicate nominative is used with verbs denoting, to be, to become, to appear, to be named, to be called, to be esteemed, &c.

Rem. 1. The verb sometimes agrees with the predicate nominative; as, Amantium ira amoris integratio est, The quarrels of lovers are a renewal of love.

Rem. 2. If the subject is in the accusative, the predicate noun must be in the accusative also; as, dicit Cæsarem esse regem, he says that Cæsar is a king.

Rem. 3. When the subject of the infinitive is omitted, a predicate noun or adjective is often put in the dative, if a dative precedes; as nemini medio esse licet, no man may be neutral.

THE GENITIVE.

§ 131. The genitive case expresses the precise limit within which the meaning of a word is to be taken.

Thus, in the expression amor gloriæ, the genitive, gloriæ, expresses the limit within which the meaning of amor is restricted.

RULE V The genitive is used to limit the meaning of nouns, and also of some adjectives, verbs, and adverbs.

Rem. 1 The genitive is said to be subjective when it expresses that which does something, or to which something pertains or belongs; as, Ciceronis orationes, Cicero's orations. It is objective when it expresses the object to which an action or feeling is directed; as, amor gloriae, the love of glory.

Rem. 2. A noun may be limited both by a subjective and objective genitive; as, Cæsaris amor gloriae, Cæsar's love of glory.

Rem. 3. Instead of an objective genitive a preposition with its case is often used to avoid ambiguity; as, amor in rempublicam, or erga rempublicam, love towards the state.

Rem. 4. The genitive of a substantive pronoun is usually objective; as, cura mei, care for me;—while possessive adjectives and pronouns usually express subjective relations; as, cura mea, my care; causa regia, the king's cause. But the latter are sometimes objective; as, mea injuria, injury done to me; metus hostilis, fear of the enemy.

§ 132. RULE VI. Genitive of Quality. The genitive, limited by an adjective agreeing with it, is used to express the quality of a thing; as,

Vir magnæ virtutis, A man of great valor.

The ablative is used in the same way.

Rem. 1. This genitive may limit a noun, or form part of the predicate, like an adjective; as, Maximi animi fui, He was very brave.

§ 133. RULE VII. Genitive of Property. The genitive, the limited noun being omitted, is used with the verb esse to denote that to which something belongs, or to which something is peculiar; as,

Hæc domus Marci est, This house is Mark's [house.]

Pauperis est numerare pecus, { It is characteristic of a poor man to count his flock.

Rem. 1. Instead of the genitives mei, tui, sui, &c., the neuter possessives meum, tuum, suum, &c., are used; as, tuum est videre quid agatur, it is your business to see what is going on. A possessive adjective may be used in the same way; as, humanum est errare, it is human to err, i. e. characteristic of man.

§ 134. RULE VIII. Partitive Genitive. With words expressing a part, the genitive is used to denote the whole; as,

Unus militum, One of the soldiers.

This genitive is used with nouns expressing a part; with adjectives, especially comparatives, superlatives and numerals; with many pronouns, and with adverbs of time, place, and quantity.

Rem. 1. The partitive word, if an adjective, usually agrees in gender with the genitive; but adjectives of quantity are used as nouns in the neuter; as, quid novi? what news? Tantum auri, so much gold.

Rem. 2. Instead of a genitive, the prepositions ex, de, and sometimes in, inter, are used; as, quidam ex militibus, inter omnes fortissimus.

§ 135. RULE IX. Objective Genitive with Adjectives and Verbs. The genitive is used to express the object to which an action or feeling is directed with

(a.) Adjectives expressing desire, experience, knowledge, capacity, participation, fulness, memory, care, certainty, fear, guilt, and their contraries; as,

Avidus laudis, Desirous of praise.

Here also belong participial adjectives in ns; as amans pecuniæ.

(b.) Verbs of remembering, reminding and forgetting; recordor, meminî, reminiscor, obliviscor, moneo, and its compounds; as,

Memini beneficii tui [=memor sum; &c.] I remember your kindness.

Te officii moneo [=me monem facio,] I remind you of your duty.

The thing remembered or forgotten is also put in the accusative.

(c.) Verbs expressing pity, &c.—miseror, misereor, and the impersonals miseret, pœnitet, pudet, piget, tædet &c.

Miserescio infelictum, I pity the unfortunate
Pœnitet me peccati, I repent of my sin.

Rem. 1. With these impersonals the person feeling is expressed by the accusative.

Rem. 2. The cause or object of the feeling may be expressed by an infinitive or a sentence; as, pœnitet me peccavisse or pœnit. peccavi, I repent of having sinned.

(d.) Verbs of plenty or want (sometimes); as,

Eget [=egens est] argenti, He is in need of silver.

(e.) The impersonals refert and interest; as,

Reipublicæ interest, It is of importance to the state.

Rem. 3. Instead of the genitive of the personal pronouns, the forms mea, tua, sua, nostra, vestra, [abl. sing. fem.] are used with refert and interest; as,

Non tua interest, It is not your business.

Rem. 4. The thing with reference to which anything is important may be expressed by the acc. with ad; the degree of importance, by the genitives magni, parvi, &c., [see Rule XI.] or by an adverb; while the subject may be an infinitive, a neuter pronoun, or a noun-clause. As,

Hec ad laudem civitatis magni interest, This is of great importance to the glory of the state.

Rem. 5. Smilis and its compounds, especially with the names of living beings, take a genitive. [see § 142, Rem. 3] As,

Smilis patris, Like his father.

§ 136. RULE X. Genitive of Crime. With verbs of accusing, condemning, acquitting, &c., the genitive expresses the crime or offence charged. As,

Servum facti accusat, He accuses the slave of theft.

Rem. 1 With some of these verbs the ablative with or without de, is used to express the crime; as, aliquem de vi accusare, to accuse one of violence.

Rem. 2. With damno and condemno the penalty is expressed by the genitive, but oftener by the ablative, especially when it consists of money or land: as, damnatur capitis, or capite, he is condemned to death. Tertia parte agri donatur, He is fined a third of his land.

§ 137 RULE XI. Genitive of Price. The genitive is used to express the price or value of a thing indefinitely: as,

Magni estimabat pecuniam, He esteemed money highly.

In this manner are used the genitive of adjectives, and the genitives assis, flocci, &c.; also pensi and hujus.

Rem. 1. To this rule may be referred the expression aquæ bonæ facis, or consulis, I take in good part. I am satisfied with.

Rem. 2. With astimo, and verbs of buying and selling, the ablatives maximo, permaximo, plurimo, parvo, minimo, and nililo, are often used.

For the genitive of place, see § 136. Exc.

For the genitive with opus and usus, see § 130. Rem. 1

THE DATIVE.

§ 140. The dative expresses that to or for which, or with reference to which, anything is, or is done.

§ 141. RULE XII. Dative of Remote Object. The remote object of a verb is in the dative; as, Servus domino medicinam parat. The slave prepares medicine for his master.

 The remote object of a verb is the thing towards which its action tends, without necessarily reaching it.

NOTE.—This dative is used with most verbs, especially with verbs compounded with ad, ante, con, in, inter, ob, post, præ, pro, sub, super.

Rem. 1. Transitive verbs have also a direct object in the accusative.

* Rule XI. [a.]

§ 142. RULE XIII. Dative of Advantage or Disadvantage. The dative expresses the person or thing for whose advantage or disadvantage anything is, or is done. As,

Servus domino fidus, A servant faithful to his master.

NOTE.—This dative is used with adjectives expressing goodness, usefulness, fitness, &c.; also with verbs meaning to favor, please, trust, obey, threaten, be angry, and their contraries. These verbs are equivalent to esse with an adjective; as, Irasci inimicis,=iratus esse inimicis, to be angry with one's enemies.

Rem. 1. The verbs juco, delecto, laedo, offendo, are transitive, and have a direct object in the accusative. Fido and confido are often followed by the ablative.

Rem. 2. Many adjectives take an accusative with a preposition, instead of a dative; as, servus in dominum fidelis; locus ad insidias aptus.

Rem. 3. The dative expresses the person or thing to, or with reference to which, anything is clear, equal, like, unlike, near. Dative of Reference.

Rem. 4. Propter and propterea, like prope, are sometimes followed by the accusative.

§ 143. RULE XIV. Dative of Possession. The dative is used with esse to express the person who has, or possesses something, the thing possessed being the subject. As,

Est mihi liber, [a book is to me.] I have a book.

Rem. 1. The possessor is expressed by the dative when the idea of possession is chiefly referred to; as, Cæsari domus est, Cæsar has a house;—the gentile, then the possessor, or thing possessed, is referred to, rather than the fact of possession; as, Hæc domus Ciceronis est, illa Ciceronis, This house is Cæsar's, that one is Cicero's.

§ 144. RULE XV Dative of Purpose or End. The dative is used with esse, and verbs of giving, coming, sending, imputing, and some others, to express the purpose of the action ; as,

Hæc mihi curæ sunt, { These things are for a care to me, or I have these things for a care.

☞ These verbs may have a personal object in the dative, and, if transitive, a direct object in the accusative. As, Collegæ venit auxilio, He came for an aid to his colleague, (i. e. to his colleague's assistance.) Mihi librum dono dedit, He gave me the book for a gift.

Rem. 1. The verbs most commonly using a double dative are, esse, fieri, dare, ducere, habere, mittere, relinquere, tribuere, venire, vertere.

Rem. 2. The purpose may be expressed by a predicate nominative; or an apposition, [see 127, Rem. 1] ; as, Mihi comes Lucius est, I have Lucius for a companion. Coronam Jovi donum mittunt, They send a crown to Jupiter, as a present.

§ 145. RULE XVI. Dative to the Agent. With the gerundine in dus the dative expresses the agent or doer ; as, Adhibenda est nobis diligentia, Diligence must be used by us.

Rem. 1. The poets sometimes use this dative with any of the passive forms ; as, æque cernitur ulli, nor is he seen by any one.

Rem. 2. Instead of the dative, the ablative with a or ab is sometimes, though rarely, used with the gerundine.

§ 146. Dativus Ethicus. The dative of the personal pronouns is used sometimes to express strong feeling, and can scarcely be rendered into English ; as, An ille mihi liber cui mulier imperat ? Is he free whom a woman rules ?

Rem. 1. Here may be noticed the use of the participles volens, optans, &c., with a dative, in imitation of the Greek: as, Neque plebi utilis volenti [esse] putabatur. Neither was the war thought to be agreeable to the common people: [Literally, to the common people wishing it.]

§ 147. The dative is sometimes used almost like a genitive, but always with the idea of advantage, disadvantage, or reference. As, Cui corpus porrigitur, (compare the English) His body is stretched out for him.

THE ACCUSATIVE.

§ 149. The accusative case marks the direct object of an action, i. e. the thing actually reached by the action; also the limit of space or time which an action or motion reaches.

§ 150. RULE XVII. The direct object of a transitive verb is in ~~the~~ accusative.

Rem. 1. An intransitive verb, though it does not require an object to complete its meaning, may be limited by accusative of similar, or kindred signification. (Cognate Accusative.) As, currere cursum, to run a race; vivere vitam, to live a life.

Rem. 2. When the cognate noun is obsolete, a noun, or noun-sentence, equivalent to it in meaning, may be used. (Equivalent Accusative.) As, proficisci magnum iter, to go a great journey.

Rem. 3. The cognate or equivalent noun is often omitted, and in its stead a neuter adjective is used, limiting the cognate notion understood. (Elliptical Accusative.) As, multum ambulat, he walks much; he does much walking. This accusative is used as an adverb.

Rem. 4. A cognate, equivalent, or elliptical accusative may be used with a passive verb; as, doceor doctrinam, I am taught teaching, science; doceor grammaticam, I am taught grammar; nimum doctus, taught too much, too learned.

Rem. 5. Many verbs which are transitive in English, in Latin represent an action only as done with reference to the object, and hence have a dative: (see §142, Rem. 3.)

§ 151. RULE XVIII. (a.) Verbs meaning to ask and teach, with celare, to conceal, take two accusatives—one of the person, the other of the thing; as,

Rogo te nummos,	I ask you for money.
Docuit me musicam,	He taught me music.

(The thing asked or taught is an equivalent accusative.)

(b.) Second Accusative. Verbs meaning to name or call, choose, appoint, make, esteem or reckon, take besides the direct object, a second accusative; as,

Urbem vocavit Romam,	He called the city Rome.
Me consulem fecistis,	You have made me consul.

Rem. 1. With verbs of asking, the person is often put in the ablative with a or ab, de, ex, instead of the accusative, as, Hæc a te posco, I demand these things of you. Exigo, peto, postulo quæro, scitor, sciscitor, never have an accusative of the person; as, Pacem a Cæsare petunt.

§ 152. RULE XIX. Twenty-six prepositions are followed by the accusative. See §120, 1.

 As a general rule, prepositions expressing motion to a place, take the accusative.

Rem. 1. Many intransitive verbs, when compounded with a preposition, become transitive; as, transire flumen; succedere tecta.

Rem. 2. A preposition in composition often has an object in the accusative; as, Equitatus pontem transducit, He leads the cavalry over the bridge. Equitatus pontem transducitur, The cavalry are led-over the bridge.

Rem. 3. The preposition is often repeated; as, Equitatum trans pontem transducit.

§ 153. RULE XX. Accusative of time and space. Duration of time and extent of space are expressed by the accusative, sometimes by the ablative; as,

Tres horas mansit,	He remained three hours.
Fossa duos pedes lata,	A ditch two feet wide.

NOTE. The limit of time within which anything occurs is expressed by the ablative; uno anno, within one year.

§ 154. RULE XXI. Accusative of place Whither. The names of towns and small islands are put in the accusative to express the point which a motion reaches: As, Romam venit, He came to Rome.

Rem. 1. Domus and rus are construed in the same way. As, domum rediit, He returned home.

Rem. 2. A preposition is generally used when the name of a town is limited by an adjective or an apposition—urbis, oppidum, &c. As, Demaratus se contulit Tarquinius ad urbem Etruriae,—to Tarquinii, a town of Etruria. Ad doctas Athenas proficisci.

Rem. 3. The preposition is sometimes omitted in prose, often in poetry, before the name of any place to which motion is directed. Deveniunt speluncam.

§ 155. As the accusative expresses the limit actually reached by an action or motion, so also it expresses the limit to which the truth of a proposition extends. Thus, membra nudus est, He is naked—not entirely, but only as to his limbs. Hence,

RULE XXII. The accusative is sometimes used to express a special limitation. (Acc. of limitation.). As,

Nudus membra, Naked as to his limbs.

Rem. 1. This is a Greek construction, and is rarely used in prose.

Rem. 2. The poets often use an accusative with a passive verb in the sense of the Greek middle; as, Priamus inutile ferrum cingitur. Priam girds himself with (puts on,) the useless sword.

§ 156. RULE XXIII. The accusative expresses the object of a feeling, with or without an interjection, As, Heu me miserum! Ah wretched me!

For the accusative with { propior and proximus, see §142, Rem. 4.
 { miseret, §c., see §135, Rem. 1.
 { the infinitive, see §188.

VOCATIVE.

•§ 158. The name of the person addressed is put in the vocative.

ABLATIVE.

§ 159. RULE XXIV Ablative of Cause, Manner, Means, Instrument. The ablative expresses the cause, manner, means, and instrument; as,

Cæcus avaritia,

Hoc modo fecit,

Aquila alis volat,

Captivum gladio occidit,

Blinded by avarice.

He did it in this manner.

The eagle flies with his wings.

He kills the captive with a sword.

Rem. 1. The causal ablative is used mostly with intransitive and passive verbs, and with adjectives.

Rem. 2. The cause, especially with transitive verbs, is often expressed by ob or propter, with the accusative.

Rem. 3. Akin to the causal ablative is the ablative of source with participles expressing origin; as, natus dea, born of a goddess.

Rem. 4. The manner is expressed by the ablative of words meaning manner,—modus, mos, ratio, ritus:—or by the ablative of other words with cum; as, cum voluptate te audio. When an adjective is added to the noun, cum is usually omitted: as, sequo animo calamitates ferre, to bear calamities with patience.

Rem. 5. When the means or instrument is a person, per with the accusative must be used; as, Per te liberatus sum, I was freed through you.

Rem. 6. To this rule may be referred the ablative with the deponents utor, I employ myself with, I use; fruor, I delight myself with, I enjoy; fungor, I busy myself with, I perform; potior, (potis), I make myself powerful with, I take possession of: vescor, I feed myself with, I eat.

NOTE. Potior sometimes takes a genitive, (I make myself master of).

§160 RULE XXV. The ablative expresses the material or supply. As.

Germania fluminibus abundat, Germany abounds in rivers.

 This ablative is used with verbs and adjectives of plenty or want, filling or emptying, depriving, &c.; also with opus est, there is need.

Rem. 1. With opus and usus the genitive is sometimes used, and rarely the accusative. Opus is either subject of est, or an indeclinable adjective in the predicate. Duce nobis opus est, or Duc nobis opus est. The latter construction is used with neuter pronouns and adjectives: as, Quid nobis opus est?

Rem. 2. The genitive is also used with expressions of plenty or wants. See § 135, Rule IX. d.

§ 161. RULE XXVI. Ablative of Limitation.—Nouns, adjectives, and verbs are limited by the ablative showing in what respect their meaning is taken; as,

Oppidum nomine Bibrax, A town, Bibrax by name.
Æger pedibus, Lame in his feet.

§ 162. RULE XXVII. Ablative of Price. The price or value of a thing, if stated definitely, is expressed by the ablative; as, Patriam auro vendidit, He sold his country for gold.

Rem. 1. The price or value, if indefinitely stated, is expressed by the genitive. See § 137.

Rem. 2. To this rule may be referred the ablative with dignus, indignus, &c.

§ 163. RULE XXVIII. Ablative of Separation.—That from which anything is freed, removed or separated, is expressed by the ablative; as, Patriam hostibus liberavit, He freed his country from enemies.

Rem. 1. A preposition, (ab, de, &c.) is often used with this ablative.

Rem. 2. The preposition is rarely used with names of towns denoting the place from which motion proceeds, or with the ablatives domo, humo, rure and ruri. Roma discessit. Domo exire, to go out from home.

Rem. 3. Verbs of taking away have sometimes, instead of an ablative, a dative of advantage or disadvantage; as, Nec mihi te eripient, Nor shall they take you from me.

§ 164. RULE XXIX. Ablative of Quality. The ablative limited by an adjective, is used to express the quality of a thing; as, Serpens ingenti magnitudine, A serpent of huge size.

Rem. 1. This ablative may form part of the predicate, like an adjective; as, Agessilaus statura fuit humili, Agessilaus was of low stature.

Rem. 2. A genitive may supply the place of the adjective; as,

Est bos cervi figure, There is an ox of the shape of a stag; (a stag-shaped ox.)

§ 165. RULE XXX. Ablative of Comparison. The ablative is used with the comparative degree when quam is omitted, to express that with which something is compared; as.

Mons est arbore altior, A mountain is higher than a tree.

Rem. 1. The complement of a comparative may be connected by the conjunction quam, still in the same case, or in the nominative, subject of est, fuit, &c., understood. As, Fortiorem vidi neminem quam Marium or quam Marium (est.)

Rem. 2. When the thing compared is the subject, the ablative is generally used; as, saxum auro durius est; also when the thing compared is the object, the ablative, especially of pronouns, is used; as, Hoc nihil gratius, acere potest.

But with a comparative in another case than the nominative or accusative, the ablative is very rarely used. Quam is used with all cases.

Rem. 3. The complement of a comparative is often omitted altogether, and the comparative is then translated by too, or rather with the positive. Equus paulo longius recessit, The horseman had ridden a little too far.

Rem. 4. Plus, minus, and amplius are often prefixed to expressions of number, magnitude, &c., without effect upon the construction; as, Non amplius horas sex mansit, He staid not more than six hours. These words may be considered adverbs, or indeclinable nouns.

Longius, and the adjectives major and minor are sometimes used in the same way; thus, puer annorum decem, a boy of ten years; puer minor annorum decem, a boy of less than ten years.

§ 166. RULE XXXI. Ablative of Place Where. The ablative, usually with the preposition in, expresses the place where; as, Castris, or in castris mansit, He remained in the camp.

Alexander Babylone mortuus est, Alexander died at Babylon.

 The preposition is rarely used with names of towns.

Exc. The name of a town denoting the place where, if of the first or second declension and singular number, is in the genitive; as,

Habitat Romæ,	He lives at Rome.
Mileti mortuus est,	He died at Miletus.

Rem. 1. The genitives domi, humi, militiæ, and belli, also express the place where; as, domi militiæque. at home and in service. The genitive of names of islands and countries is sometimes used in the same way.

§ 167. RULE XXXII. Ablative of Time When. The point of time at which anything occurs is expressed by the ablative; as,

Tertia hora,	At the third hour.
---------------------	---------------------------

Rem. 1. The limit of time within which anything is done, is expressed by the ablative. See § 153, note.

Rem. 2. The time before or after an event is expressed, (a.) by ante or post with a numeral; (b.) by antequam or postquam; (c.) the time after an event, by the relative or quum.

After ten years, or Ten years after.		Ten years after he had come.

When ante or post stands last an accusative specifying the event is often added, decimo anno ante conjunctionem.

(c.) Octo diebus quibus occisus est, Eight days after he was killed.
Quatriduo quo occisus est, In four days after he was killed.

§ 168. RULE XXXIII. Ablative of Excess or Defect. The ablative is used to show how much one thing exceeds or falls short of another; as,

Multis partibus major,	Many times larger.
Dimidio minor,	Less by half.

The Britons live mostly on milk and flesh. The general, trusting in the nature of the place, kept his forces in camp. Very many poor (men) have died of hunger and thirst. I cannot speak for (on account of) grief. The townsmen besought Cæsar with many tears. Orgetorix, the richest and most noble of the Helvetians, led on by the desire of reigning (regni), made a conspiracy of the nobility. The soldiers finished the journey with incredible swiftness. Cicero wrote all his speeches with the greatest care and diligence. The Belgians attacked the camp with great shouting. It is the duty (vii.) of a young man to respect his elders. Bocchus was king in name, but not in fact. The sailors had loaded the ships with gold. Thou hast deprived the citizens of (their) land; thou hast stripped the temples of (their) silver and gold; thou hast filled the city with blood and corpses: for these things (ob has res) I cut thee off from water and fire. We have need of haste. How much gold have we need of? This base fellow will exchange faith and religion for money. Lycurgus forbade the use of gold to his people. The Eduans were not able to keep off the Helvetians from their country.

It is the duty of a general to deem his own safety of less account than the common safety. Near the city is a cave of boundless depth. This soldier is of low stature and lame in his feet. I have seen no more beautiful (woman) than Tullia. On that day Cæsar advanced (procedere) not more than six miles. The burden was too heavy for his strength. More men were killed than would have been expected from the number of combatants. Three days after Cæsar reached the camp, ambassadors were sent by the Germans. The consul was blind for many years before (antequam) you were born. The king of the Thracians dwelt many years at Rome. Ireland is less by half than Britain. Cicero was much more eloquent than Crassus. The farther the enemy retreated, the more swiftly did our men pursue. Our horsemen pursued the enemy a little too far.

THE PASSIVE CONSTRUCTION.

For change from active to passive construction see § 103.

§ 172. RULE XXXV Verbs which in the active take another case in addition to the object-accusative, in the passive retain that other case; as,

Liber puero datur, A book is given to the boy.
Arbores foliis nudantur, The trees are stripped of leaves.

Rem. 1. A second accusative in the active, (except with verbs of teaching and some verbs of asking,) becomes a predicate nominative in the passive. Urbem vocavit Romam; Urbs Roma vocatur

Rem. 2. As intransitive verbs have no direct object in the active, they are not used personally in the passive, except with a cognate nominative. (Cursus curritur.) When they are used impersonally, the remote object is of course retained. Mihi a te persuadetur, I am persuaded by you.

SYNTAX OF THE INDEFINITE VERB.

The finite verb consists of the indicative, subjunctive, and imperative moods; the indefinite verb, of the infinitive, participles, gerund, and supine.

INFINITIVE.

§ 173. RULE XXXVI. The infinitive is often used as a neuter noun in the nominative or accusative, and may be the subject of a verb; as,

Gratum est tecum ambulare, It is pleasant to walk with you.

§ 174. RULE XXXVII. Complementary Infinitive.—The infinitive is used as a complement (filling up) with certain verbs and adjectives expressing an incomplete idea; as,

Parat bellum gerere, He is preparing to wage war.

Rem. 1. The infinitive with adjectives is rare in prose, the gerund being generally used. Cupidus moriendi, rather than cupidus moriri.

Rem. 2. A purpose is not expressed in Latin prose by the infinitive. Thus, I came to see, must be translated veni ut viderem, not veni videre, though this construction is sometimes used by the poets.

Rem. 3. An infinitive expressing an incomplete idea (§130, 3) has the same case after it as before it, if both nouns refer to the same thing; as, volo esse rex. Nemini medio esse licet. Mihi esse poetæ diu non concessere, The gods have not permitted me to be a poet. Pudet me victum discedere, I am ashamed to come off conquered.

Rem. 4. The accusative with the infinitive (§188) is sometimes used with licet, and the predicate noun must then be in the accusative; as, nimini (se) medium esse licet.

§ 175. RULE XXXVIII. Historical 'Infinitive. In animated narration the infinitive is often used like a past indicative; as, Consul in Africam festinare, The consul hastened to Africa.

For the accusative with the infinitive, see §188.

For the construction of participles, see §185.

GERUND, & GERUNDIVE OR PARTICIPLE IN DUS.

§ 176. RULE XXXIX. The gerund is a verbal noun in the oblique cases, (the nominative being supplied by the infinitive,) and is construed with the same cases as the verb from which it is derived.

Studium patrem videndi, The desire of seeing my father.
Parcendo victis, By sparing the conquered.

§ 177. RULE XL. Instead of a transitive gerund the gerundive is frequently used; the object-noun being put into the case of the gerund, and the gerundive agreeing with it in gender, number, and case; as,

Consilium scribendi epistolam, Consilium epistolæ scribendæ, } The design of writing a letter.

Rem. 1. A transitive gerund with an object accusative is not used in the dative or accusative, but the gerundive is used instead; as, Charta utilis est scribendis epistolis, or ad scribendas epistolas; (not scribendo epistolas). So also when the gerund would be the object of a preposition the gerundive is used instead; as, In victore laudando, (not victorem), In praising the conqueror.

Rem. 2. The gerund is preferred when the object is a neuter adjective or pronoun; as, Studium aliquid faciendi, The desire of doing something.

Rem. 3. The genitive singular of the gerund is sometimes used instead of the genitive plural of the gerundive, with a noun in the genitive plural; Fucltas agrorum latronibus suis condonandi, The opportunity of presenting our fields to his ruffians. So also in the expression, sui purgandi causa, for the purpose of excusing themselves; though sui may better be regarded the gen. sing. neuter of the possessive, like nostri and vestri.

Rem. 4. The verbs utor, frvor, fungor, potior, and sometimes me-deor, use the gerundive like transitive verbs.

§ 178. RULE XLI. The neuter gerundive is used impersonally with the tenses of esse, to express the necessity or duty of doing an action; as,

Scribendum est mihi, I must write. (It must be written by me.)

Rem. 1. The object of the action is sometimes expressed; as, nobis ratione utendum est, We must use reason

But with transitive verbs the personal construction is almost always used; as, Epistota mihi scribenda est, I must write a letter.

(This use of the gerundive is sometimes called the second Periphrastic Conjugation.)

Rem. 2. The agent is expressed by the dative (§ 145), rarely by the ablative with a or ab.

SUPINE.

§ 179. RULE XLII. (a.) The supine in um (acc.) is used with verbs of motion to express the purpose of the motion, and is construed with the same cases as its verb; as,

Venio te rogatum, I come to ask you.

(b.) The supine in u is used with adjectives as an ablative of limitation (§ 161). As,

Facile factu, Easy to be done, (with respect to the doing.)

The Gauls had formed the design of attacking the town. Time for retiring from (out of) the fight was not given to the wearied. The hope of plundering had recalled the farmers from their fields. The general gave the city to his soldiers to be plundered. The chiefs of the State came to Cæsar for the purpose of excusing themselves. The king's daughters had fled from home (XXVIII) for the purpose of saving themselves. The Gauls send ambassadors to Rome to complain-of (supine) injuries, and to seek redress. A short life is long enough to accomplish all these things. Cæsar had to do all things at one time; the flag had to be set up, the soldiers recalled from the work; (those) who had advanced a little too far, sent for; the line had to be drawn up; the soldiers exhorted; the signal given. The soldiers had at the same time both to leap-down from the ships, and to fight with the enemy. We learn, by teaching. We live by eating. The Helvetians were desirous of carrying on war. We must lead the army over the river. We must respect our elders, favor our friends, obey the laws. We must love (§178, Rem. 2) our parents and worship God. SYNTAX OF SENTENCES.

§ 181. 1. Sentences are either principal or dependent. A principal sentence makes complete sense when standing alone; a dependent sentence does not make complete sense when alone, but must be connected with another sentence.

2. Dependent or subordinate sentences are of ten kinds, viz. :

- [1] Participial sentences, i. e. those whose predicate is a participle.
- [2] Infinitive sentences, i. e. those whose predicate is an infinitive.
- [3] Causal sentences, introduced by the causal conjunctions quod quia, &c.
- [4] Final sentences, introduced by a final conjunction.
- [5] Conditional sentences, introduced by a conditional conjunction.
- [6] Concessive sentences, introduced by a concessive conjunction.
- [7] Comparative sentences, introduced by a comparative conjunction.
- [8] Temporal sentences, introduced by a temporal conjunction.
- [9] Relative sentences, introduced by a relative pronoun.
- [10] Interrogative sentences, introduced by an interrogative word.

3. Every dependent sentence is either a noun, adjective, or adverb, limiting either the subject or predicate of the principal sentence on which it depends (hangs down).

4. Sentences of the same rank, whether principal or dependent, may be connected by conjunctions, and are then said to be coordinate with each other. Coordination is of five kinds, viz. :

- [1] Copulative, e. g. His father has abandoned him, and his friends have deserted him.
- [2] Disjunctive ; e. g. Either his father has abandoned him, or his friends have deserted him.
- [3] Adversative ; e. g. His father has abandoned him, but his friends will not.
- [4] Causal ; [introduced by nam, namque, enim, etenim,] e. g. His friends will desert him, for his father has abandoned him.
- [5] Conclusive ; e. g. His father has abandoned him, therefore his friends will desert him.

THE MOODS.

§182. RULE XLIII. The indicative is used both in principal and dependent sentences when a fact is stated.

§183. RULE XLIV The subjunctive is used when a thing is stated, not as a fact, but simply as conceived in the mind;

- [a] In a softened assertion; as, Hoc confirmaverim, I think I can assert this.
- [b] In a question implying doubt, or expecting a negative answer; as, Quid faciamus! What shall we do!
- (c) To express a supposed case; as, Forsitan aliquis dixerit, Perhaps some one will say.
- (d) To express a command or prohibition; as, Ne hoc feceris, Do not do this.

Rem. The subjunctive is always used to express a command or exhortation in the first person, the imperative having no first person: as, eamus, let us go.

TENSES.

§184. The tenses are either primary or historical.

	PRESENT.	FUTURES.	PRES. PERFECT.
Primary,	Amat,	Amabit,	Amavit,
	He loves.	He will love.	He has loved.
	IMPERFECT.	PAST PERFECT.	ACRIST PERFECT.
Historical,	Amabat,	Amaverat,	Amavit,
	He was loving.	He had loved.	He loved.

RULE XLV Succession of Tenses. If there be a primary tense in the principal sentence, there must be a primary in the dependent sentence; if there be an historical tense in the principal, there must be an historical in the dependent.

PRINCIPAL. DEPENDENT.

Venio	ut videam,	I come, that I may see.
Veniam	ut videam,	I will come, that I may see.
Veni	ut videam,	I have come that I may see.
Veniebam	ut viderem,	I was coming that I might see.
Veni	ut viderem,	I came that I might see.

PARTICIPIAL SENTENCES.

§185. 1. The participle is used to abridge discourse, and may stand in the place of a causal, final, conditional, concessive, relative, or temporal sentence, or a principal sentence connected by et with what follows.

2. (a) The participle may agree with the subject or object of the principal sentence, (participial conjunctive construction); as, Aristides patria pulsus Lacedaemonem fugit, Aristides when driven from his country fled to Sparta:—(b) Or, it may stand with a noun or pronoun in the ablative, without grammatical connection with any word in the principal sentence: as, His rebus constitutis consul discessit, These things being determined upon, the consul departed. (Ablative Absolute.)

3. Here may be noted some peculiarities in the use of the participles.

(a.) The participle in rus is used with the verb esse to represent the agent as about to perform, or intending to perform an action. Locutus fuit, He was on the point of speaking. (This is sometimes called the First Periphrastic Conjugation.)

(b.) The participle in rus, especially with verbs of motion, is sometimes used to express a purpose. Ad Jovem Amorem pergit consulturus de origine sua, He goes to Jupiter Amour to consult about his origin.

(c.) The perfect passive participle is often used like a verbal noun in -io or -us; as, Ab urbe condita, From the building of the city. Post proelium factum, After the fighting of the battle.

§ 186. RULE XLVI. (Ablative Absolute). A noun and participle whose case depends upon no other word, are put in the ablative called absolute, to express the time, cause, condition, or circumstances of an action.

Pythagoras, Tarquinio regnante, } Pythagoras came to Italy in the reign of nante, in Italiam venit. } Tarquin, (Tarquin reigning).

Rem. 1. Two nouns, or a noun and adjective, are often used in the ablative absolute without a participle.

Natura duce, Under the guidance of nature, (nature being guide.)
Manlio consule, In the consulship of Manlius, (Manlius being consul.)

Rem. 2. This construction is used only when the subject of the participial sentence is different from that of the principal sentence. (A few instances of this construction with a personal pronoun are exceptions.)

Who will err under the guidance of nature? Who, pray, will not err under your guidance? In the consulship of Manlius the Gauls sent ambassadors to Rome. These things having been determined upon, the lie of battle having been drawn up, the signal having been given, our men commenced battle. Both parties fought (114, 5) bravely. The consul, fearing the enemy's cavalry, left his forces in camp (for) three days. Two years before the destruction of Carthage the Numidians sent ambassadors to Rome to the senate. The general is going to attack the enemy at sunset. In the reign of Tarquin the proud, many noble citizens were murdered at Rome. The general having called together his lieutenants, ordered them to commence the battle. The Athenians, having consulted the oracle, returned home. Adherbal, (when) expelled from Numidia, fled to Rome. These things having been satisfactorily arranged, Cæsar set out to (in) Britain.

INFINITIVE SENTENCES.

§188. RULE XLVII. After expressions of saying, thinking, &c., (verba sentiendi et dicendi), and certain impersonal expressions, dependent sentences introduced in English by that, are expressed in Latin by the accusative with the infinitive; as,

Dicit me scribere, He says that I write.

Rem. 1. The infinitive expresses an action as present, past or future, with reference, not to the present time, but to the time of the leading verb.

- | | | | | |

Hence, after a primary tense (a) the infinitive is translated like the indicative of the same tense, i. e. an inf. present, like an indicative present, &c. : after an historical tense (b) the inf. present is translated like the indicative imperfect : the inf. perfect, like the indicative past perfect ; the inf. future like the subjunctive imperfect (should or would) ; and the inf. future-perfect (fuisse scripturum), like the subjunctive past perfect (should have, would have).

Rem. 2 The accusative with the inf. fut. passive is properly the object of the supine, the inf. pres. passive iri being used impersonally ; dicit epistolam scriptum iri, he says that it is gone to write the letter ; i. e. that some one is going to write it, and hence, that it will be written.

Rem. 3. An infinitive sentence is always a noun-sentence, the object of a verb of saying or thinking, the subject of an impersonal verb, or in apposition with another noun.

The cruel chief threatened to slay (§ 189, Exc.) the women and children. Ariovistus declared that he would not return the hostages. Cæsar said that he was not leading the army against his country. This base traitor will say that he has not announced our plans to the enemy. Who can assert that he has never violated the laws of God? Dumnorix asserted that he was about to seize the kingdom.

It were aware that the robbers had slain the merchant. It is not just for a rich man to oppress the poor. It is said that in Africa men eat human flesh. The Belgians are said to be the bravest of all the Gauls. Word had been brought to Caesar that the enemy had moved his camp, and had encamped at the foot of the mountain. Caesar had said (dicere) that he would not neglect the injuries of the Æduans. The chief thought that he would compel the nobility by force. The consul hopes by these things to increase (§ 189, Ex. d) his property, and to acquire means for (ut) bribing.

CAUSAL SENTENCES.

§ 189. Dependent causal sentences are introduced by all the causal conjunctions except nam, namque, enim, et enim, which introduce principal sentences.

RULE XLVIII. The subjunctive is used in causal sentences when a statement is made, not as a fact, but as the assertion or opinion of some one else ; as, Socrates comedat ut quod ; Socrates was brought to trial, because (as corrumperet juventutem ; men said, he corrupted the youth.

Rem. 1. A verb of saying or thinking is sometimes expressed, and the subjunctive still retained by a species of attraction. What would have been the predicate of the causal sentence becomes the accusative with the infinitive. Iraatus est Caius quod diceret leges esse violatas, instead of iratus est Caius quod leges essent violatæ, Caius was angry, because (as he alleged) the laws had been violated.

Rem. 2. Dependent causal sentences are nouns, usually limiting the predicate like a causal ablative. The causal conjunctions quod, quia, &c., are relative words.

Cæsar cut down the bridge which Lædæd had built [see §139, examples] on the Rhine, because he was unwilling for the Germans to follow him into Gaul. Was not Aristides banished from his country, because [as men thought] he was unduly just? The Æduans complained that [because] Aristivus had [as he alleged] led a great army of Germans across the Rhine. Cæsar, because he was unwilling [a fact] for these things to be discussed in the presence of the ambassadors, quickly dismissed the council. The consul said that since he could not consult for the state, he would look to his own safety. You desire to slay me, not because [as you allege] I have violated the laws of the commonwealth, but because I have rebuked you severely for your crimes. The shepherd blamed his son strongly, because he had neglected to shear the sheep. Since this is the case, let us set out. Liseus said that since such was the case, he would speak a few things.

FINAL SENTENCES.

§192. Final sentences express a purpose or result, (the end to which an action tends,) and are introduced by the final conjunctions ut, ne, quo, quin, quominus.

§193. RULE XLIX. The predicate of a final sentence is in the subjunctive; as,

Veni ut videam, I have come to see.

NOTE.—As a purpose has reference to the future, and is not a fact, but something conceived in the mind, it should obviously be expressed by the subjunctive. A result is a purpose accomplished, and was regarded by the Latins, not so much in the character of a fact, as of what was intended to follow, or would naturally be expected to follow, in the circumstances, and is therefore indeterminate; hence the use of the subjunctive.

Rem. 1. Ut or uti expresses either a purpose or a result.

Veni ut videam, I have come to see, (that I may see.)

Eo impetu milites irrunt ut } The soldiers went with such violence that hostes se fugæ mandarent, } the enemy took to flight.

Rem. 2. [a.] Ne always expresses a purpose, [that—not, lest.]

Te obsecro ne hoc facias, I beseech you not to do this.

A negative result must be expressed by ut—non.

[b.] With verbs of fearing ne is translated that, and ut, that—not, the final sentence being constructed with reference to the contrary purpose or hope implied in the verb of fearing. Timeo ne moriatur, I am afraid that he will die. [It is my purpose that he shall not.] Timeo ut moriatur, I am afraid that he will not die. [It is my purpose that he shall.]

Ne—non is sometimes used for emphasis, especially after a negative; as, Non vereor ne tua virtus opinionum hominum non respondeat, I am not afraid that your valor will not answer the expectation of men.

Rem. 3. Quo, that, is generally used in preference to ut, when a comparative enters the sentence.

Cæsar pontem fecit quo facilius flumen transiret.

Rem. 4. Quin, but that, but that—not, [=qui non or ut—non,] is used with negative expressions and expressions of doubt.

Nemo est quin putet, There is one who does not think.

Nemo tam imperus est quin putet, No one is so foolish as not to think.

N. B. In final sentences expressing a result, the subjunctive is translated like the indicative of the same tense.

Operam dare. To take care.

Præceptum est, Instructions were given.

Edictum est, An edict was issued.

Pater filio præcepit ne unquam } The father instructed his son never mentiretur, } to lie.

Dominus servo imperavit ut equum infrenaret, } The master commanded the servant to } bridle the horse.

CONDITIONAL SENTENCES

§196. Express a condition, and are introduced by the conditional conjunctions, si, if; nisi or ni, unless, if—not; sin, but if; dum, modo, dummodo, provided.

The principal sentence, or complement of the condition, is called the conclusion.

§197 RULE L. (a.) If the condition is represented as a fact, the indicative is used both in the condition and conclusion.

Si vera dicis, leges violavi, } If you speak the truth, (of which I have no doubt,) I have broken the laws.

(b.) If the condition is represented as possible, or likely to be realized, the subjunctive present or perfect is used in the condition, and the indicative, (generally future,) in the conclusion. (Indeterminate Condition.)

Si pecuniam habeat, dabit, If he has the money, he will give it.

Si mihi pecuniam dederit, ibo, } If he will give (shall have given) me the money, I will go. (The money must be given before I go.)

(c.) If the non-existence of the condition is implied, the subjunctive is used both in the condition and conclusion, the imperfect for present or future time, the past-perfect for past time.

Si pecuniam haberet, daret, } If he had money (now,) he would give it.
If he should have money, (at any future time) he would give it.

Si pecuniam habuisset, dedisset, } If he had had money, he would have given it. (Past time.)

Rem. 1. On the same principle the subjunctive-present or present-perfect is used to express a possible wish, the imperf. or past-perf. to express a vain wish.

Utinam filius } vivat!
} viveret! O that my son } may live!
} vixisset! } were living!
} had lived!

Rem. 2. The condition is sometimes (a.) implied in some other expression; as, sine cibo nemo vivere posset, No one would be able to live without food; or (b.) altogether suppressed, in which case the indicative imperfect is frequently used; as, Scilicet erat mori quod venturi. It would be better (if necessary) to lie them to lie.

Rem. 3. When the non-existence of the condition is implied, the indicative (especially the imperfects decebat, oportebat, dicebam, petieram, and eram with a gerundive or adjective,) are sometimes used in the conclusion; as, Si victoria dubia esset tamen omnes bonos virgultii se subvenire decebat. If the victory were doubtful, yet all good men ought to come to the assistance of the State.

Rem. 4. The use of the imperfect or past perfect in a conditional sentence does not necessarily imply the non-existence of the condition, as they are often used simply because the leading verb is past, and not because the character of the condition requires their use. See § 184.

Rem. 5. In a conditional sentence the subjunctive is usually translated like the indicative.

Rem. 6. Conditional sentences are adverbs.

CONCESSIVE SENTENCES

§ 199. Express something granted or yielded, and are introduced by the concessive conjunctions etsi, quanquam, tametsi, licet, quamvis, etiamsi, &c., with the general meaning although.

§ 200. RULE LI. (a) If the thing granted is represented as a fact, the indicative is used, generally with quanquam, etsi, or tametsi as.

Romani, quanquam fessi erant, } The Romans, though they were weary, tamen instructi procedunt, } yet march in order of battle.

(b) A concession merely for arguments sake, or where the non-existence of the thing granted is implied, a mere conception), is expressed by the subjunctive, usually with quamvis or licet, sometimes with etiamsi or etsi; as,

Mendacium, quamvis occultetur, } A falsehood, though it be conceal- tamen turpe est, } ed, is nevertheless base.

Rem. 1. The complement of a concessive sentence is an adversative sentence introduced by tamen.

Rem. 2. Quanquam is properly the acc. sing. fem. of quisquis, (rem being understood); thus (a) In respect to whatever thing the Romans were weary, &c.

Rem. 3. Etsi, tametsi, etiamsi, (even if), and ut in the sense of even if, although, are properly conditional conjunctions, the mood to be used depending upon the character of the condition. (See §197).

Rem. 4. Quamvis, quantumlibet, quântumlibet, are properly relative pronouns, (as much as you please, however much). Thus, in example (b). A falsehood, however much it may be concealed, let it be concealed as much as you please, &c. (See §210, Rem. 3).

Rem. 5. Licet is an impersonal verb, ut being omitted; as, Erant omnes licet dicam quod sentio, Though all cry out, (it is allowed that I'll cry out,) I will say what I think.

Rem. 6. The subjunctive is always used with ut or quum concessive.

Rem. 7. Concessive sentences are adverbs.

COMPARATIVE SENTENCES

§ 202. Express comparison, and are introduced by comparative conjunctions, (than, as,) quam, sicut, velut, prout, tanquam, quasi, utsi, acsi; with ac and atque (as or than).

§ 203. RULE LII. In comparative sentences

(a) A fact is expressed by the indicative; as,
Quam maximas potest copias cogit, He collects as great forces as he can.

(b) A mere conception and not a fact, is expressed by the subjunctive; as,

Me adspicitis quasi monstrum essem, You gaze at me as if I were a monster.

Rem. 1. The comparative conjunctions are for the most part either relative or conditional words. Thus quam, than, is a relative, rem being understood. Cicero eloquentior fuit quam (rem) Cæsar (eloquens fuit). In-respect-to-what Cæsar was eloquent, Cicero was more eloquent; i. e. Cicero was more eloquent than Cæsar. So in example (a), (Copias cogit (tam) maximas quam potest, He collects forces very great in that degree in which degree he can,) quam is an adverbial relative, tam understood being its antecedent. In the example, In horto ambulabam sicut meus est mos, (— as my custom is), sic is an adverbial demonstrative limiting ambulabam. and ut an adverbial relative having sic as its antecedent;—(In horto eo modo ambulabam quo modo meus est mos ambulare). In example (b) quam (quasi=quam) is a relative, and si a conditional conjunction. Me aspiceretis quam adspiceretis si &c. You gaze at me as (you would gaze) if I were &c.

Rem. 2. In comparative sentences the subjunctive is mostly translated by the indicative

Rem. 3. Comparative sentences are adverbs.

TEMPORAL SENTENCES,

§ 204. Point out the time of an action, and are introduced by the temporal conjunctions ut, ubi, quum, when; postquam, posteauquam, after; antequam, priusquam, before; quando, when, whenever; simulac, simul, as soon as; dum, donec, quousq, while, as long as, until.

NOTE 1. In the narration of facts, the indicative will of course be used in temporal sentences; as, Postquam in urbem venit, After he came into the city.

NOTE 2. The adverbial relative quum or cum, (at what time, when, while), frequently has also a causal or concessive force, since, although. As a pure particle of time, it takes the indicative; but it is also followed by the subjunctive imperfect or past-perfect in the narration of past facts, especially when the aorist-perfect is used in the principal sentence. When the subjunctive is used, however, the idea of cause is usually combined with that of time. Quum, causal or concessive, always takes the subjunctive. Hence, § 205. RULE LIII. The subjunctive is always used (a) with QUUM causal or concessive; (b) frequently also with QUUM temporal, especially when the aorist-perfect is used in the principal sentence.

(a) Quæ quum ita sint, Since these things are so.

(a) Ceres frumenta invenit, quum antea homines glandibus vescerentur, Ceres invented grains, whereas men before lived on acorns.

(b) Quum nostri arma cepissent, hostes se receperunt, When our men had taken up arms, the enemy retreated. (Here quum cepissent points out both the time and cause of the enemy's retreat.)

§ 206. RULE LIV. With antequam and priusquam (a) the indicative is used to express the simple priority of one action to another, (both having actually been performed.)

Filios convocavit antequam mortuus est, He called together his sons before he died.

(b) The subjunctive is used, (1), when the action is future and doubtful; (2), when the non-existence of the action is implied; (3), in indefinite general expressions.

(1) Cæsar, priusquam quidquam } Cæsar, before he attempted any- conaretur, Divitiacum vocavit, } thing, called Divitiacus.

(The attempting was future to the calling, and dependent upon the result of Cæsar's interview with Divitiacus).

(2) Prius ad hostium castra pervenit, } He reached the enemy's camp quam Germani quid ageretur } before the Germans could sentire possent; } find out what was going on.

(It is here implied that the Germans never could find out.)

(3) Tempestas minatur antequam } The tempest threatens before it, surgat, } rises. (A general truth).

Rem. 1. After a future in the principal sentence, the indicative present or future-perfect is used with antequam and priusquam; as, Antequam pro Murena dicere instituo, Before I begin to speak for Murena, I will say a little for myself.

Rem. 2. In historical narrative the subjunctive imperfect and past perfect are sometimes used with these conjunctions, very much in the same way as with quum temporal. Paucis ante diebus quam Syracusæ caperentur, A few days before Syracuse was taken.

§207 RULE LV Dum, donec, and quoad, in the sense of until, are followed by the indicative when a fact is stated; by the subjunctive, when the action is doubtful or future, (not a fact, but a conception).

Locum relinquere noluit } He would not leave his post till Milo should dum Milo veniret, } come.

(These conjunctions in the sense of while, as long as, take the indicative.)

Rem. 1. All temporal sentences are adverbs, and in such sentences the subjunctive is for the most part translated like the indicative.

RELATIVE SENTENCES

§209. Are introduced by a relative word. (For construction of relatives see §129.)

The predicate of a relative sentence is of course in the indicative when a fact is stated. The subjunctive is used in three cases.

§210. RULE LVI. The subjunctive is used in relative sentences ; (a) expressing purpose, result, or cause (qui=ut or quod with demonstrative). As,

Legatos miserunt qui (=ut ii)	}	They sent ambassadors to sue for peace.
pacem peterent,		(Purpose)
Non is sum qui hoc faciam,	}	I am not such a one as to do this. (Result.)
Male fecit Hannibal qui
Capuæ hiemarit,	}	Hannibal did wrong in wintering (because he wintered) at Capua. (Cause)

(b) In indefinite general expressions, both affirmative and negative.

Sunt qui dicant, These are some who say.

Nemo est orator qui se Demosthenis	}	No one is an orator who is unwilling to be like Demosthenes.
similem esse nolit,

(c) To express the words or opinions of some one else, and not of the author,

Nunicatum est equites qui	}	Word was brought that the horsemen who
præmissi essent revertisse,		had been sent forward had returned.

Rem. 1. The subjunctive with qui expresses a purpose with reference to the object of the sentence, a purpose with reference the subject being expressed by ut. (See §193. §180, Example.) Thus qui pacem peterent means, that they, (the ambassadors,) might seek peace. Qui may be used with the passive construction ; Legati missi sunt qui pacem peterent ; where the object in the active becomes subject in the passive.

Rem. 2. Quippe, utque, and ut are frequently joined with qui expressing a cause. The indicative is frequently used with quippe qui.

Rem. 3. The subjunctive is used in indefinite general expressions introduced by any relative word, whether adjectival or adverbial. Ubi res posceret castellum commisit, Wherever circumstances required, he built a fort. Such relative sentences express a condition,—thus, If circumstances anywhere required, &c. But the indicative is frequently used; as, Quamcumque in partem . . . impetum fecerant, hostes loco cedere cogebantur.

Rem. 4. The poets and some prose writers use the indicative with sunt qui, erant qui, &c. The indicative will of course be used when a definite subject is introduced. Sunt feræ quæ domari non possunt, There are wild beasts which cannot be tamed. (A fact.) But the subjunctive is used even then, if a particular fact is not stated; as, sunt feræ quæ domari non possint, ——— such that they cannot be tamed (if one should make the attempt.)

Rem. 5. A relative sentence is an adjective, limiting the antecedent. Puer qui legit, the reading boy. But as an adjective often agrees with a noun while limiting a verb, so an adjective sentence frequently limits the predicate, expressing the purpose (like a dative of purpose,—§144), or the cause (like an ablative of cause,—§159.) See examples, LVI, a.

INTERROGATIVE SENTENCES

§212. Are introduced by an interrogative word, and contain a question.

1. A direct question is asked by means of a principal sentence ; as, Quis venit? Who comes ?

2. An indirect question contains the substance of a direct question, without giving the exact words, and the sentence by which it is asked is always dependent ; as, Janitor interrogavit quis veniret, The porter asked who came.

3. Questions, both direct and indirect, are asked by means of interrogative pronouns (§88), and the particles ne, nonne, num (§81) ; and double questions, by utrum—an, whether—or. In an indirect question ne means whether, if ; nonne, if not ; num, whether, if.

§213. RULE LVII. The subjunctive is used in a direct question implying doubt ; as,

Quo fugiam! Whither shall I fly ?

§214. RULE LVIII. The subjunctive is always used in indirect questions ; as,

Nescio quis veniat, I do not know who is coming.

Rem. 1. The older writers sometimes use the indicative in indirect questions.

Rem. 2. The first part of a double question is often omitted. Cujum pecus est hoc? an Melibœi?—Is it another person's, or is it Melibœus's?

Rem. 3. Dependent interrogative sentences are nouns.

Ariovistus dixit se obsides quos ab Æluis haberet non redditurus esse.

Rem. 1. An imperative in the oratio recta, becomes a subjunctive in the oratio obliqua, a verb of commanding or exhorting being understood.

Rem. 2. The reason for the use of the subjunctive referred to above (Rule LIX) is obvious, as the writer is making the statement, not as a fact upon his own authority, but as the opinion or assertion of some one else.

Rem. 3. The accusative with the infinitive is sometimes used in relative sentences in the oratio obliqua, the relative being equivalent to et with a demonstrative, and the sentence being therefore dependent only in form. The same construction occurs occasionally in other dependent sentences.

Rem. 4. The indicative is occasionally used in dependent sentences in oratio obliqua.

Rem. 5. Questions in which the indicative is used in direct discourse, are generally expressed in oblique discourse by the accusative with the infinitive, if the subject is of the first or third person : by the subjunctive, if the subject is of the second person.

Si ceteris Romanis placere vellet, num cuius eorum injuriarum memoriam deponere posset? (Si—cellum, num—possum?)

An quicquam superbius esse? (An quicquam superbius est?)

Quid tandem vererentur, aut cur de sua virtute desperarent? (Quid veremini, aut cur desperatis?)

If the subjunctive is used in direct discourse (§183), it is of course retained in oblique.

Cæsar said (negavit) that he could not give the Helvetii a way through the province, because he feared that (§193, 2, b) they would do injury to his allies. The scouts announced to Cæsar that the cavalry which he had sent forward had been routed by the enemy; that the skirmishers had not been able to cross the river; that the forces which the Germans had collected would arrive in three days. Word was brought that the footmen, the flight of the horsemen having been seen, had retreated to the mountain.

APPENDIX IV.

DERIVATION OF NOUNS, ADJECTIVES, AND VERBS.

§22. 1. Nouns are { other nouns, Denominatives ; derived from { adjectives, Abstracts ;
 { verbs, Verbals.

(c) By adding io or us to the supine-stem ; as, lect-io, a reading ; cant-us, a singing.

(d) Sometimes by adding ela, imonia, imonium, to the present-stem, or ura to the supine-stem ; as, quer-da, complaining, a complaint.

10. Ura added to the supine-stem usually denotes the result of an action ; as, pic-t-ura, the result of painting, a picture.

11. The doer of an action is expressed by or, (fem. rix), added to the supine-stem ; as, vict-or, vict-rix, a conqueror. Some nouns in or are formed from other nouns, though an intermediate verb is always supposed to exist ; as, vi-a, vi are, vi at-or ; gladi-us, gladi are, gladi-at-or.

The doer is expressed by adding a or o to the present-stem of a few verbs ; as, scrib-a, comed-o.

12. The endings ulum, bulum (brum), culum (clum or crum), trum, added to the present-stem, express the instrument, sometimes the place, for performing the action ; as, ven-a-bulum, a hunting spear ; veh-i-culum, a vehicle. These endings are sometimes added to noun-stems ; as, acet-abulum, a vinegar casket.

13. The ending men added to the present-stem, expresses the thing in which the action of the verb is exhibited ; as, flu-men, that which exhibits flowing, a river ; ag-men, something which exhibits motion, an army on the march.

14. The ending mentum, added to the present-stem, usually with a connecting vowel, expresses the means of performing the action ; as doc u-mentum, a means of showing, a proof.

15. The ending orium added to the supine-stem expresses the place where an action is performed ; as, aud-it-orium, a lecture-room.

16. Adjectives are mostly derived from verbs (verbals), or from nouns and adjectives, (denominatives).

DENOMINATIVE ADJECTIVES.

17. The ending eus, (sometimes nus, neus), means made of, as, aur-eus, made of gold ; ebur-nus, made of ivory. Sometimes it expresses resemblance in character ; as, virgin-eus, maidenly. The endings inus (penult short,) and eus have the same meaning.

18. The endings alis, anus, aris, arius, ilis (penult long,) atilis, icus, iculus, ius, ivus (penult long,) and iculus, mean pertaining to, belonging to, and form possessive adjectives. The ending ilis often denotes character; as, puer-ilis, boyish. These adjectives are often used as nouns, the limited noun being omitted; as, ferr-arius (faber), a smith; medic-inus (ars), the physician's art, medicine; avi-arium, a place pertaining to birds, an aviary; ov-ile, something pertaining to sheep, a fold.

19. The endings osus and lentus mean full of; as, vin-osus, full of wine; fra-du-lentus, full of fraud.

20. From names of places are formed possessives in -nus, as, ensis, lus, inarius; as, Athen-i-ensis, of Athens, an Athenian.

21. The ending -tus means furnished with, wearing; as, al-bus, winged; bar-batus, bearded.

VERBAL ADJECTIVES.

22. The ending undus added to the present-stem, with a connecting vowel, has the meaning of the participle present, but usually with an intensive force; as, cr-as-undus, wandering to and fro; cur-undus has sometimes the same meaning.

23. The ending ibilis added to the present-stem, expresses state or condition; as, cal-ibilis, cold; rap-ibilis, rapid.

24. The ending -us added to the stem of an intransitive verb, expresses condition or tendency; —added to the stem of a transitive verb, it has a passive meaning; as, con-gru-us, agreeing; no-cuus, blamable; ap-er-ibilis, visible.

25. The endings -ilis (with a connecting vowel), and -ibilis, added to verbal stems, express, passively, capability or desert; as, fac-ibilis, capable of being done; as, am-a-bilis, deserving to be loved. Sometimes they are active in meaning; as, horr-i-bilis, producing horror.

26. The ending -icius, or -ivus, added to the supine-stem, has a passive sense; as, fict-icius, feigned.

27. The ending -ax expresses an inclination—generally an evil one; as, rap-ax, rapacious.

28. The ending -ivus added to the supine stem expresses, actively, capacity or tendency; as, con-junct-ivus, having a tendency to unite, conjunctive.

DERIVATION OF VERBS.

29. From noun and adjective stems are formed

(a) Intransitives (in o, eo, or,) denoting to be that denoted by the primitive; as, comi-or, I accompany.

(b) Transitives (o, or,) denoting to do or make, to exercise, employ or use upon something, that which is denoted by the primitive; as, fraud-o, I use fraud, I defraud; liber-o, I make free.

30. From verbs are derived the following:

(a) Frequentatives, expressing frequency, or increase, of the action expressed by the primitive. They are formed by adding the endings of the first conjugation to the supine-stem, at passing into it; as, clam-are (clam-at,) to cry—clam-it-are, to cry aloud, or frequently. A few add ito to the present-stem; as, ag-ito. Frequentatives are sometimes formed from frequentatives; as, curro, curso, cursilo; venio, vento, ventito.

(b) Inceptives, expressing the beginning of an action or condition. They are of the third conjugation, and are formed by adding sco, scor to the present-stem with a connecting vowel; lab-a-sco, I begin to totter; ard-e sco, I begin to be warm; profic-i-scor, I begin to make myself forward, I set out.

(c) Dsideratives, expressing strong desire. They are of the fourth conjugation, and are formed by adding urio to the supine-stem of the primitive; as, es-urio, (edo,) I desire to eat, I am hungry. They are few in number.

(d) Diminutives, which express trifling action. They are formed by adding illo to the present or supine stem; as, conscrib-illo, I scribble.

(e) Intensives, which express earnest action. They are of the third conjugation, and are formed by adding esso, or isso, to the stem of the primitive; as, fac-esso, I do with all my might.

NOTE. Many verbs of the above classes have only the meaning of the primitive.

ANALYSIS OF TENSE FORMATION.

§223. 1. Every verb-form consists of two parts, the stem and the ending. The ending consists of the personal signs

(for the most part pronominal roots of the different persons); the connecting vowel; and, in some tenses, the tense-sign. Though for the sake of convenience we call the radicals am-, mon-, and aud- the present-stems of the verbs amare, monere, and audire, the stems are in fact ama-, mon-, and audi-; verbs of 1st, 2nd, and the 4th conjugations may, therefore, be termed pure or vowel verbs, while only those of the 3rd conjugation have consonant stems. Thus, in the form ama-ba-tis, (ama-ba-i-tis), ama- means love; eba-, the tense-sign, marks incomplete action in past time, (the e being absorbed by a of the stem,) and means did; i, the connecting vowel, or mood-sign, is absorbed by the a preceding, while tis, the personal sign, means ye or you. The whole, if literally rendered, means love-did-ye, or according to the English idiom, ye love-did, ye love-d.

2. The following tables show the personal, mood, and tense-signs, which, uniting with the verb stem, produce the various verb forms.

(a) PERSONAL ENDINGS.

Singular.				Plural.
Person.	1.	2.	3.	1.	2.	3.
Active.	m,	s,	t,	mus,	tis,	nt.
		Ind. Perf. sti.			Ind. perf. stis.
Passive.	r,	ris, re,	tur,	mur,	mini,	ntur,

NOTE. The personal sign m is the radical of the Greek, Latin, and English me; mus is the pluralized form: s, frequently interchanged with t, is the radical of tu, (Greek su, English th-ou,) and tis is the same form pluralized, the t being resumed: t, of the third person, (plur. nt.) has a demonstrative force, and is found as a prefix in tantus, talis, &c.; and as a suffix in et, (English i-t.) is-te, &c.

The radical of the passive is r, and enters into all the passive endings e. g. am-er, mon-er, aud-er, am-er, which is wholly unlike the rest, and is generally considered a participial ending (Greek menoi.) estis being understood;—ama-mini estis. The personal signs for the Imperative are, to, (pl. tote.) to, (pl. nto.) Pass., re or tor, (pl. mini.) tor, (pl. ntor.)

(b) MOOD SIGNS.

Persons.		1.	2.	3.	1.	2.	3.
Indicative.	All but Pres.-Perfect, and Fut., 3rd and 4th conj.	o,	{ i, pass. e,	i,	i,	i,	u.
	Pres.- Perf.	i,	i,	i,	i,	i,	eru
	Fut., 3rd and 4th conj.	a,	i,	i,	i,	i,	u.
Subjunctive.	Pres., 2nd, 3rd, and 4th conj.	a,	a,	a,	a,	a,	a.
	Pres., 1st conj.	e,	e,	e,	e,	e,	e
	Pres.-Perf.	i,	i, i,	i,	i, i,	i, i,	i i.
	Imperf. and Past-Perf.	e,	e,	e,	e,	e	e.
Imperative.		—	e,	e,	—	i.	u.
Inf. Active e, pass. i.

Note. The mood-signs of the Indic. are short (except i and eru of the pres.-perf.); those of the Imper. are short; those of the Subj. long (except i of the pres.-perf. which is long or short.)

(c) TENSE SIGNS.

	Pres.	Imperf.	Fut.	Pres.-Perf.	Past-Perf.	Fut.-Perf.
Indicative.	noue,	eie,	eb, 1st & 2nd conj. e, 3rd & 4th conj.	noue,	era,	er.
Subjunctive.	noue,	er,		er,	iss,
Infinitive.	er,			iss,

Note. The sign of completed action must not be confounded with the tense signs. It is

In the 1st conj. v, sometimes passing into u,—sec-u-i;
 “ “ 2nd “ v, generally passing into u,—mon-u-i;
 “ “ 3rd “ generally s, sometimes u.
 “ “ 4th “ v.

Before it the final letter of the stem is lengthened; as, ama-vi, fe-vi, audi-vi. The reduplication is sometimes used, as in Greek, to indicate completed action; as, mo-mord-i, po-posc-i, ve-ven-i, (contr. ven-i.) mo-mov-i, (contr. mov-i). Such perfects as pav-i, (pa-sc-o.) quiev-i, (quie-sc-o.) sprev-i, (sper-n-o for spre-n-o.) are regularly formed on vowel-stems, strengthened by the addition of sc, (App. IV. 30, b,) and n.

3. Where two vowels come together, the former usually absorbs the latter, the two short syllables making one long one. It must be borne in mind, however, that no vowel in Latin can be long before m, t, or r, except in certain monosyllables. The mood-sign o and the personal-sign m, never stand together, but one or the other is dropped; as, amao(m), amaba(o)m;—amo, amabam.

4. In the following table the stem, sign-sign mood-sign, and personal-sign, are exhibited.

5. The participles are formed by adding adjectival endings to the verb-stem, [sometimes with a connecting vowel in consonant verbs,] ns expressing continuance [actively]; turus, futurity; tus, completion [passively]; and -ndus, fitness, capacity.

6. The gerund is a verbal noun formed by adding -ndi, &c., to the verb-stem, a connecting vowel being necessary in consonant verbs: reg-e-ndi.

7. The supine is a verbal noun of the fourth conjugation, sometimes complete [as cursus], but usually found only in the accusative and ablative. It is formed by adding tus [sometimes sus] to the verb-stem.

APPENDIX VI. PECULIARITIES OF TENSE FORMATION

TENSES FORMED ON THE PRESENT-STEM.

§224. 1. The tense-sign of the indicative future in verbs of the fourth conjugation [i stems] seems anciently to have been eb, as in a and e stems, the i of the stem absorbing the e of the tense-sign: as vesti-b-o, sci-b-o, instead of vesti-iz-m, sci-am. The same contraction also occurs in the imperfect; as ves-tib-am. The forms ibam and ibo of eo are still retained.

2. The endings im, is, &c., in the subjunctive present [mood-sign i] are sometimes found in the earlier writers and in the poets; as edim, edis, edit, edimus, &c., for edam, &c. The same mood-sign is always found in the forms sim, sis, &c., velim, velis, &c., and their compounds.

3. The ending e is dropped in the imperatives dic, duc, fac, and fer. The short forms are also used in their compounds, except those compounds of facio which change a into i; as, effice.

4. The personal-sign of the imperative future passive 2nd person singular was anciently mino; as horta-mino, progredi-mino. The older writers sometimes use the active ending of the imperative in dependent verbs; as arbitrato, instead of arbitrator.

TENSES FORMED ON THE PERFECT-STEM.

5. The letter v of the perfect stem is frequently elided and the first vowel of the ending is absorbed, when followed in the first conjugation by e, in the other conjugations by s or r; as ama-[v]-isti, apasti; fle-[v]-eram, feram. When i precedes v, there is usually no contraction. This is especially the case in compounds of eo; as redii, perii, subii &c.

6. When the perfect-stem ends in s, the syllables is, iss; immediately following it, are sometimes omitted; as evasti, evassem, evastis, for evas-isti, evas-issem, evas-istis.

7. An ancient future-perfect in so sometimes occurs, from which subjunctive forms in sem and sim, are formed; as recepso, recepssim. Sometimes this future is formed on the present-stem; as, habesso.

The forms ausim, faxim and faxo, are retained by the classic writers.

COMPOUND VERBS.

8. Compound verbs generally form their perfect and supine stem like the simple verbs from which they are derived. Sometimes, however, there is a change of the stem vowel; as hab-eo, pro-hib-eo; fac-io, con-fic-io; scind-o, de-scend-o. A reduplication in the perfect is omitted in compound verbs; as, cæd-o, ce-cid-i; oc-cid-o, oc-cid-i; but the compounds of do, sto, disco, and posce, and some of those of curro, retain it.

APPENDIX VII.

THE VARIOUS FORMATIONS OF THE PERFECT AND SUPINE STEMS.

§225. First Conjugation.

1. The perfect and supine stems are formed, in the first conjugation, by adding respectively av and at to the present stem; or, to speak more correctly, by adding v and t to the crude form of the verb; as, ama-, amav-, amat-.
2. But

(a) The characteristic vowel a is elided in the perfect tenses of a few verbs, (a passing into u after a consonant,) and in such cases is usually changed into i in the supine; as, crepo, crep-u-i, crep-i-tum.

(b) The perfect stem is formed by reduplicating the initial consonant with e; as d-arr, ded-i.

(c) Some verbs seem originally to have reduplicated; but the reduplication has been dropped, the two first syllables blending into one, and the short stem-vowel becoming long; as lav-o, lav-i, for la-la-vi.

3. The following list contains the verbs which vary from the usual mode of formation.

Crepo , crepare , crepui , crepitum , to break. Increpo , - avi , or - ui , - atum or - itum . Discrepo , - ui , —, Recrepo , are , —, —.	dimico , - avi rarely - ui . - atum . emico , - ui , - atum .
Cubo , cubui , cubitum , to lie down. Incubo has rarely - avi . Some of the compounds insert m , and are of the 3d conjugation.	Neco , necavi rarely necui , nec- atum rarely nectum , to kill.
Domo , domui , domitum , to tame.	Plico , plicavi & plicui , plicatum & plicitum , to fold.
Do , dare , dedi , datum , to give. Compounds with monosyllabic prepositions are of the 3d conju- gation.	applico , complico , explico , impli- co , in the same way. The other compounds have - avi , atum .
Fico , fricui , frictum or fricatum , to rub. confrico , confricavi , confrica- tum .	Poto , - avi , potum and potatum , to drink.
Juvo , juvi , juvum , juvaturus , to help.	Seco , secui , sectum and secatum , to cut. So also præseco , reseco . The other compounds have only sectum .
Lavo , [are, & ere,] lavi , lotum , lautum , and lavatum , lavaturus , to wash.	Sono , sonui , sonitum , sonaturus . to sound. Consono , exsono , in- sono , præsono , - ui , —. Re- sono , avi , —.
Mico , micui , —, to quiver	Sto , steti [for sesti .] - statum , to stand. Tono , tonui , —, to thunder Attono , - ui , - itum . Veto , vetui , vetitum , to forbid.

§226. SECOND CONJUGATION.

1. The perfect stem is formed, in the second conjugation

(a) by adding v to the crude form of the verb, as in the first conjugation; as, fle-o, flev-i.

(b) But in most verbs the characteristic e is elided, passing into u; and, as in the first conjugation, the characteristic is changed into i in the supine; as, monē-o, monu-i, monit-um.

(c) In many verbs e is elided, and s, instead of v, added; with such consonant changes as euphony may require; as, ardē-o, ar-s-i for ard-si; auge-o, aux-i for aug-si.

(d) A few verbs reduplicate the initial consonant, and drop the characteristic e; as, morde-o, mo-mord-i.

(e) Some verbs preserve a trace of the reduplication in the lengthening of the stem-vowel in the perfect, the characteristic, as in the last class, being elided; as, move-o, mōv-i; perhaps for mō mōv-i; or perhaps the original form was move-v-i, syncopated into mōv-i, to avoid having two successive syllables begin with v. All verbs of the first and second conjugations which lengthen the stem-vowel in the perfect, have stems ending in v, except video and sedeo.

2. The following list contains the verbs of the second conjugation which form the perfect and supine stems otherwise than according to §226, 1, b, that being considered the regular formation, as it is the one which most commonly occurs.

Aboleo, abolēvi, abolitum, to destroy. The other compounds of the obsolete oleo, ere ado'eo, adolui, (rarely adolevi,) adultum; exolesco, (inceptive from exoleo,) exolevi, exolitum; deleo, -evitum.	Audeo, ausus sum, (rarely ausi, from which ausim,) to dare.

VARIOUS FORMATIONS OF THE PERFECT AND SUPINE STEMS.

THIRD CONJUGATION.

§ 230. 1. The perfect stem is formed in the third conjugation.

(a) By adding s, to the present-stem, which in this conjugation is the crude form of the verb. As, carp-o, carps-i.

(b) By adding v to the crude form of the verb, which has been strengthened by adding n or sc, as in Greek. These are all originally vowel verbs. As, cre-sc-o, crev-i; pa-sc-o, pav-i; no-sc-o, nov-i; si-n-o, siv-i; sper-n-o, sperv-i (by metathesis for spervi.)

(c) By adding u (the form which the perfect sign v assumes after a consonant.) As, al-o, alv-i.

(d) By adding iv to the present stem; as, arcess-o, arcessiv-i.

(e) By reduplicating the initial consonant; as, cur-o, cu-curr-i.

(f) By lengthening the present-stem, with or without vowel change; as, em-o, em-i; ag-o, eg-i.

g) In a number of verbs (especially vowel verbs in u), the perfect-stem is like the present-stem; as, accv-o, accv-i.

2. The supine-stem is usually formed in the third conjugation by adding t, frequently by adding s, to the present stem.

3. The following list contains most of the verbs of this conjugation.

Acto, acui, acutum, to sharpen.	have no supine-stem. See App.
Ago, egi, actum, to set in motion.	VI, 8.
Ambrigo, ere, —, —, dago, cado, cecidi, casum, to cut.	The compounds change æ into i; as,
Aggi, satago, ere, —, —.	occido, occidi, occisum. See
Allo, alui, altum and alitum, to nourish.	App. VI, 8.
Ango, anxii, —, to choke.	Cando, to cause to shine; when i

	Ulciscor, ultus, to avenge
	Utor, usus, to use

FOURTH CONJUGATION.

§223. 1. Verbs of the fourth conjugation are vowel verbs, the characteristic vowel being i. The perfect-stem is formed

(a) By adding v; as, audi-o, audiv-i.

(b). The characteristic vowel is dropped in some verbs, and then v passes into u; as, salī-o, sal-u-i.

(c) By dropping the characteristic and adding s; as, sepīo, seps-i.

(d) By dropping the characteristic and lengthening the stem-vowel; as, venī-o, ven-i.

2. The supine-stem is formed by adding t.

In many verbs v of the perfect stem is elided.

3. The following list contains those verbs which form the perfect-stem according to the three last methods mentioned above.

Amīcio, -ui or -xi, amictum, to clothe.	Pario is of the third conjugation
Balbutio, —, —, to stammer.	but its compounds are of the fourth;
Cæcutio, —, —, to be blind.	as, aperio, aperui, apertum; so

Perior, (obs. whence peritus.) experior, expertus, to try.	Oppetere, to be impatient.

APPENDIX VIII.

ROMAN MODE OF RECKONING TIME.

§ 234. 1. The Romans divided the natural day, (from sunrise to sunset,) into twelve equal hours of varying length according to the time of year. The night was also divided in the same way into four equal watches.

2. The year, according to the calendar of Julius Cæsar, was divided into twelve months, as follows:

Januarius, 31 days.	Maius, 31 days.	September, 30 days.
Februarius, 28 "	Junius, 30 "	October, 31 "
Martius, 31 "	Quintilis, 31 "	November, 30 "
Aprilis, 30 "	Sextilis, 31 "	December, 31 "

3. In early times the year began in March, hence the names, Quintilis, Sextilis, September, &c. Quintilis and Sextilis, were afterwards changed to Julius and Augustus in honor of the first two Cæsars.

4. The day of the month was reckoned from three points, Kalends, Nones, and Ides, which fell respectively on the first, fifth, and thirteenth of each month; except March, May, July, and October, when the Nones fell on the seventh, and the Ides on the fifteenth.

5. Any given date was reckoned, not backward from the first day of the month as with us, but forward to the next Kalends, Nones, or Ides, inclusive. Thus the 2nd of March was called the “sixth before the Nones of March;” sextus (ante) Nonas Martias, or ante diem sextum Nonas Martias; the 16th of March was called the “17th before the Kalends of April,” septimus decimus (ante) Kalendas Apriles, or ante diem septimum decimum Kalendas Apriles. The 2nd of June was called quartus Nonas Junias, or ante diem quartum Nonas Junias, &c.

6. In leap year February had 29 days, the 24th (sextus Kal. Mar.) being doubled and called bisextus Kal. Mar.—Hence leap year was called bisextilis.

7. Therefore, to reduce the Roman calendar to our own,

(a). For a date before the Nones or Ides, subtract the number of days from the day of the month on which the Nones or Ides fell, and add one to the remainder. Thus, a. d. VIII, Idus Maias, $(15-8) + 1 = 8$; May 8th.

(b). For a date before the Kalends, subtract the number of days from the number of days in the month, and add two to the remainder. Thus, a. d. XVII, Kal. Jun.; $(31-17) + 2 = 16$; May 16th.

8. To reduce our calendar to the Roman, the process will be reversed.

9. The week of seven days (hebdomas,) was not used at Rome till after the introduction of christianity.

APPENDIX IX.—PROSODY.*

§236. Prosody is the science of versification.

* Prosody belongs rather to poetry than to grammar. In the following appendix the only metres discussed are hexameter and pentameter, these being the only ones the pupil is likely to encounter in the course of preparation for college. The rules of quantity are for the most part derived from the full and laborious work of Dr Andrews.

QUANTITY.

1. The quantity of a syllable is the relative time occupied in pronouncing it, a long syllable requiring twice as much time as a short one.

2. A vowel is long by nature, as duco ; or by position, as restiti. A syllable that is sometimes long and sometimes short is said to be common.

§237. RULE I. A vowel before another vowel is short.

So also when h comes between two vowels, it being only a breathing.

Exc. 1. Fio has i long except before er ; and sometimes even then ; as fiunt, fiam.

Exc. 2. E between two i's is long in the genitive and dative of the 5th declension ; as, faciei.

Exc. 3. A is long in the penult of old genitives in ai ; as, aulai.

Exc. 4. A & E are long in the endings aius, eius, eia.

Exc. 5. I is common in genitives in ius, but in alterius it is almost always short.

Exc. 6. The first vowel of cheu is long ; that of Diana, io, and aho, is common.

§ 238. RULE II. Diphthongs are long.

Exc. 1. Præ, in composition, is short before a vowel.

Exc. 2. A diphthong at the end of a word is sometimes made short when the next word begins with a vowel.

§ 239. RULE III. Contracted syllables are long. (For an exception see §223, 3.)

§240. RULE IV. A vowel before two consonants, a double consonant, or the letter j, is long by position.

NOTE. A vowel, other than i, really combines with j to form a diphthong.

REM. 1. The vowel is long by position when one or both the consonants are in the same word with it ; but when both stand at the beginning of the following word, the vowel is common.

REM. 2. A short vowel at the end of a word before an initial double consonant or j in the next word, is not lengthened.

REM. 3. The law of position is frequently disregarded by the comic poets.

Exc. 1. I is short before j in the compounds of jugum; as, bijugus.

Exc. 2. A vowel naturally short, before a mute and liquid, is common.

REM. 4. A vowel is made long by position in compound words where the former part ends with a mute, and the latter part begins with a liquid; as, ablucio.

REM. 5. A short vowel at the end of a word, before a mute and liquid in the next word, is rarely lengthened, except in the arsis of a foot.

REM. 6. In Latin words only l and r following a mute lengthen a preceding short vowel.

§241. RULE V Derivatives retain the quantity of their primitives.

Exc. 1. Frequentatives from verbs of the 1st conjugation change a long into i short; clamat-um, clamit-o.

Exc. 2. (a). Some derivatives lengthen a short vowel; such as deni from decem; persona from sono; humanus from homo; seciūs from secus; laterna from lateo; sedes from sedeo; littera from lino; tegula from tego; suspicio from suspicio.

(b) Some shorten a long vowel; as, dicax from dico, dux (ducis) from duco, fides from fide, labe from labor, lucerna from luceo, molestus from moles, nato from natum, noto from notum, odium from odi, quasillus from qualus, sagax from sagio, sopor from sopio, vadum from vado, voco from vocis.

§242. RULE VI. Words introduced from the Greek, or other languages, retain their original quantity; so also Latin stems have the same quantity as the cognate Greek ones; as, Darius, (Greek Dareios); vicus (Greek oikos, digammated.)

§243. RULE VII. Compound words retain the quantity of their components.

Exc. 1. Agnitus and cognitus from notus; dejero & pejero from juro; hodie from hoc die; nihil from hīlum; compounds in dicus from dico; innuba, pronuba, subnuba, from nubo, (but connubium has u common;) imbecillus from bacillum; ambitum from itum; but i is short in ambitus and ambitio.

Exc. 2. Pro is short in procella, procul, profanus, profari, professus, proficiscor, profiteor, profugio, profundus, pronepos, proneptis, and protervus. It is common in procuro, profundo, propago, propello, and propino. The Greek pro is always short.

REM. 1. The inseparable prepositions dis and re are short; di, se, and ve, are long.

REM. 2. A ending the former part of a compound word is long; the other vowels short.

Exc. 1. E is long in se for ser or semi, and common in some compounds of facio.

Exc. 2. I is long when the first part of a compound is declined, or may be separated without altering the sense; as, quidam, agricultura; also in the former part of compounds of dies (biduum, meridies, &c.) in ibique, utrobique, and ibidem; and in idem when masculine.

Exc. 3. O is long in compounds of contro, intro, retro, quando, (except quandoquidem,) and in alioqui.

INCREMENTS.

§244. 1. A noun is said to increase when in any of its cases it has more syllables than in the nominative singular. A plural increment is one which belongs to the endings of the plural number, while a singular increment always belongs to the stem.

2. If a word has but one increment, it is the penult; if two, the antepenult is called the first increment, and the penult the second; if three, the syllable before the antepennult is called the first, the antepenult the second, and the penult the third; as,

$\begin{array}{ccccccc} & & 1 & & 2 & & 1 & 2 & 3 \\ \text{sermo, ser-mon-is, ser-mon-i-bus, it-in-er-i-bus.} \end{array}$

SINGULAR INCREMENTS.

§ 245. RULE VIII. Increments of the third declension in a and o are long; in e, i, and u, are short.

REM. 1. There are no singular increments in the second declension, stems in r merely dropping the nominative ending. Those of the first, fourth, and fifth, belong to § 237.

A.

Exc. 1. Masculines in al and ar (except Car, and Nar,) with anas, mas, vas, (vadis,) baccar, hepar, jubar, lar, nectar, par, fax, and sal, increase short.

Exc. 2. Nouns in s preceded by a consonant increase short in a and o; as, daps, dapis; scrobs, scrohis.

O.

Exc. 3. O in the increment of neuters is short; but os (oris) and neuter comparatives have o long. The increment of ador is common.

Exc. 4. Arbor, memor, bos, compos, impòs, lepus, and præcox increase short.

E.

Exc. 5. Nouns in en, enis, (except Hymen,) with Anio and Nerio, increase long; also hæres, locuples, mansues, merces, quies, Iber, veralec or alex, lex, rex, vervex, plebs and seps. •

I.

Exc. 6. Nouns and adjectives in ix increase long; but calix, còzendix, filix, fornix, larix, nix, pix, salix, and strix, increase short.

Exc. 7. Dis, glis, lis, vis, Nesis, Quiris, Samnis, and vibex, increase long.

U.

Exc. 8. Nouns in us (gen. uris udis, utis,) with fur, frux, lux, Potlux, increase long; but intercus, Ligus, and pecus, increase short.

REM. 2. Increments in y belong to Greek Nouns.

PLURAL INCREMENTS.

§246. RULE IX. Plural increments in a, e, and o, are long, i and u are short.

INCREMENT OF VERBS.

§247. 1. A verb is said to increase when any of its forms has more syllables than the second person singular of the indicative present active.

2. The number of the increment is reckoned as in nouns: (§244, 2,) as, audis. aud-i-tis, aud-i-e-bas, aud-i-e-ba-tis, aud-i-e-bam-i-¹am-i-^{1 2}am-i-^{1 2 3}am-i-^{1 2 3 4}

§248. RULE X. In the increment of verbs a, e, and o, are long, i and u, short.

A.

Exc. 1. The first increment of do is short.

E.

Exc. 2. E before i is short in the first increment of the present and imperfect of the third conjugation, and in the second increment in Teris & tere.

Exc. 3. E is short before um, im, & um, and the persons formed from them.

I.

Exc. 4. I is long before e or i in the perfect-stem.

Exc. 5. I is long in the supine-stem of gaudeo, accessio, divido, refresco, laccio, peto, quaro, reversio, & obliviscor.

Exc. 6. I is long in the first increment of the fourth conjugation, except imus of the perfect: also in sāmus, sitis, velāmus, velāis, no-līto, no-līte, no-līto.

Exc. 7. I is common in ris, rimus, ritis, of the indicative future perfect and subjunctive perfect.

U.

Exc. 8. U is long in the supine-stem and future participle active

PENULTS.

§249. RULE XI. Monosyllabic present and perfect stems are long (§225, 2, c.); as movi, motum (perhaps syncopated from movitum).

Exc. (a.) Seven perfect-stems are short; bib-i, ācē-i, fid-i (from findo), scid-i, stet-i, stīt-i, tul-i.

NOTE. A reduplication is always short: hence the short stems of bibi, dēdi, steti, (for sesti), and stīti (for sisti).

Exc. 3. Ris in the indicative future perfect and subjunctive perfect is common.

REMARK. The last syllable of a verse (except the anapestic and Ionic a minore), may be long or short.

VERSIFICATION

§ 268. 1. A foot is a combination of two or more syllables. A compound foot consists of two simple feet united. The only feet which we have occasion now to mention, are the Spondee, consisting of two long syllables, as u-bis; and the Dactyl, consisting of a long syllable and two short ones; as, Panicus.

2. Metre is the arrangement of syllables and feet into verses. In dactylic metre the fundamental foot is a dactyl.

3. A verse is a number of feet arranged in a certain order, and constituting a line of poetry: Two verses are called a distich, half verse, a hemistich.

4. Scanning is dividing a verse into the feet of which it is composed, or reading it metrically.

5. The figures of prosody are

(a.) Synalapha, or the elision of a final vowel or diphthong in scanning, when the next word begins with a vowel. Thus, si, omnes is read s'omnes; illi inter se' ill' inter se, &c.

Rem. 1. O, heu, ah, proh, vœ, and vah, are not elided. Other long vowels and diphthongs sometimes stand unelided, and if so, they are generally short in the thesis of a foot.

(b.) Ecclipsis, or the elision of a final m with the preceding vowel, when the next word begins with a vowel. As,

Monstr(um) horrend(um) inform(e) ingens cui lumen ademptum.

Final s was sometimes elided in the same way by the earlier poets.

Rem. 2. M final, when unelided, is short before a vowel.

(c.) Synæresis, or the contraction of two separate vowels into one syllable; as, deinde, fluviorum, tenuis, pronounced dine-de, fluv-yorum, ten-wis.

(d.) Diæresis, or the separation of one syllable into two; as, silva for silva; su-ædent for suaudent.

(e.) Systole, or the shortening of a syllable, naturally or by position long; as,

Obstupui, steterunt comæ; vœx faucibus hæsit.

(f.) Diastole, or lengthening a syllable naturally short.

(g.) Synapheia, or such a connection between the last syllable of one verse and the first of the next, that the former is made long by position, or cut off by synalœpha or ecclipsis.

6. Rhythm is the alternate elevation (arsis) or depression (thesis) of the voice in pronouncing the syllables of a verse. The terms arsis and thesis are also applied to the part of the foot on which this elevation or depression takes place. The arsis of a foot is on the long syllable.

7 The cæsure of the verse is such a division of the line;

by the ending of a word, as affords a convenient and harmonious pause.

§ 269. 1. An hexameter or heroic verse consists of six feet, the last of which is a spondee, and the fifth a dactyl; but the fifth foot is sometimes a spondee, and then the verse is called spondaic.

Ludere | quæ vel- | lem || cala- | mo per | misit a- | gressa. Virg. E 1, 10.
In nova | fert ani- | mus || mu- | tatus | dicere | formas. Ov. M. 1, 1.
Pera de | xim sobo- | les || mag- | num Jovis | iurare | mentum. Virg.

2. The cæsura in hexameter usually occurs after the arsis of the third foot, as above; frequently, however, it occurs after the arsis of the fourth foot, and there is then a slighter one after the arsis of the second; as,

Inde to- | ro pater | æne- | as || sic | æneus ab | alto.

3. A light and rapid movement is produced by the recurrence of dactyls: a slow and heavy one, by that of spondees.

Atque le- | vem stipu- | lam || crepi- | tanti | ærere | flamma.
Ill(i) in- | ter se- | se || mag- | na vi | brachia | tollunt.

§ 270. 1. A pentameter verse consists of five feet, of which the first and second may each be a dactyl or a spondee; the third is always a spondee; and the fourth and fifth, anapæsts (i. e. two short and one long).

Ah nimis | ex ve- | ro || nunc | tibi no- | men erit.

2. It is generally, however, divided into two hemistichs, the first containing two dactyls, two spondees, or a dactyl and a spondee, followed by a long syllable; the second, two dactyls, followed by another long syllable. The cæsura occurs at the close of the first hemistich.

Natu- | ra sequi- | tur || æmina | quisque su- | æ.
Ah nimis | ex ve- | ro || nunc tibi | nomen e- | rit.

3. This verse usually alternates with Hexameter, forming what is called Octo verse.

CONSISTING OF

I. Our Own Primer. For the use of children, pp. 34, 12mo.

II. Our Own Spelling Book. For schools, pp. 112.

III. Our Own First Reader. Arranged to follow the Primer and containing easy lessons for those beginning to read, with spelling lessons accompanying, pp. 72, 12mo.

IV. Our Own Second Reader. The lessons in this book have been carefully selected to suit the progress of those who have finished the First Reader, and at the same time to furnish both entertainment and instruction, pp. 168, 12mo.

V. Our Own Third Reader. In this book the most difficult words of each lesson are defined, to aid the pupil in understanding what he reads. Each lesson is also followed by an Exercise to be written on the black-board or slate, for the purpose of teaching the pupil to spell and punctuate. These exercises contain a vast amount of useful and interesting information in regard to places and things in the Confederate States, pp. 200.

VI. Our Own Fourth Reader. The lessons in this book will be found to possess high literary merit, without being above the capacity of the young reader. Definitions of the most difficult words are continued. The selections are almost entirely from writers in our own country.

VII. Our Own Fifth Reader. A rhetorical Reader for the most advanced classes in academies and high schools. This book consists chiefly of selections from the writings of authors of the highest literary attainments in the Confederate States.
